PRESIDENT HARRY S. Truman laughingly admires the 35-pound turkey sent from Oregon to grace the Executive table at the White House during the family's Thanksgiving dinner. Presented to the President by the National Turkey Federation, the big fellow was a choice member of the flock of 59,000,000 raised on America's turkey farms this year. It is the largest crop on record.

Container Opposes Bypass; Esmeralda Still Undecided

Container Corp. of America, Circleville's largest industrial firm, announced it "cannot endorse or approve" a proposed plan to build a bypass for Route 23 around the western edge of the city.

Almost simultaneously, Esmeralda Canning Co. said the project would "result in problems which—at this particular time—we don't know how to solve."

Container's outright opposition and Esmeralda's uncertainty cast serious shadow over plans for the highway change even before they had an opportunity to pass their preliminary hurdle.

The city is currently conducting a check to determine if an estimated 30 property owners affected by a proposed change in the city limits will sanction the revision. Under terms of the state's offer to build the bypass, the city would withdraw a western portion of the corporation line.

immediate future and "may have more to say next week."

Schroeder said officials of the firm's home office will be here to participate in the talks, but added the conferences "would not affect the statement as given."

IT HAS been pointed out Schroeder's reference could also mean Container may be preparing some counter proposal through which the organization could cooperate with the project.

As far as giving encouragement to bypass supporters, Esmeralda's attitude as expressed by James I. Smith, head of the firm, was only a little more cheering than the Container reaction. At the same time, however, Smith emphasized he is personally "strong for the bypass plan" and anxious to have Esmeralda approve it if a way can be found.

"The idea as it stands now," Smith said, "catches us coming and going, and although I'm anxious to see the bypass plan go through we naturally have to protect our interests when necessary."

"I'm all for the bypass if I can find it possible to support it without having the project hurt us too badly."

Smith explained the bypass plan, in addition to other ways, would involve the firm "coming and going" by blocking a plan it had to construct its own sewage plant along the Scioto River.

He said the state, as part of the current anti-pollution drive, "has been after us to do something about the sewage we're now dumping into the river—and to remedy this situation we have plans to build our own sewage plant."

"The proposed bypass route, however, is drawn directly through the spot we've had in mind for this very important branch of our operations."

SMITH SAID it appears the only way Esmeralda could cooperate with the state proposals—both for Route 23 and the anti-pollution requirements—would be to have "the city connect us with the municipal sewage system."

"The basic idea of the bypass is certainly a good one though," Smith continued, "and at any rate Route 23 certainly ought to be taken off Court street."

He pointed out he has vital interests in the bypass route at the plant, at his farm and at his home on the southern edge of the city.

"At my home we have the highway in front of our house," he said, "and we certainly wouldn't object to having it behind our house instead—as it would be under the bypass plan."

"The catch is, how far behind the house would it be?"

IN SUBMITTING aerial photos for study here recently, the state highway department warned the actual route could be anywhere within 100 feet of the line drawn on the photographs—an allowance made for camera distortions.

As for the current survey on approval of the corporation line change, Smith said the firm would readily agree to the revision. "It would only mean some of our property would be moved from the city into the county," he said, "and hence we'd pay lower taxes."

4 States Get 22 Inches Of White Blanket

Heaviest Fall Recorded Stalls Transportation And Communications

KNOXVILLE, Nov. 22 — A quirk of shifting air masses dumped up to 22 inches of snow Friday on mountain areas of four Southern states—Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia and Kentucky—paralyzing communications and transportation for many hours.

Despite rapid melting caused by relatively high ground temperatures, the unexpected storm left a large area of ill-prepared Dixie looking like a polar outpost. The snow blanket still measured 10 inches here early Saturday.

It was by far the heaviest fall ever recorded here and possibly the heaviest ever recorded this far south. But the resulting snarl in normal community living did not approach the intensity of the three-day ice storm which struck Tennessee and other Southern states early in 1951.

This city of 125,000 had a total fall estimated officially at 22 inches Friday. The precipitation in terms of water measured 2.32 inches.

THIS WAS the highest figure reported from the affected area, but communications were still blacked out to many mountain areas to the east.

Briefly, here was the situation in other states:

Virginia—Three to five inches of snow in the southeastern mountains. Harlan and Middlesboro areas isolated.

North Carolina—Four to 12 inches of snow in southwestern mountains. Telephone and telegraph lines down. Five to six hours delay on telephone calls and similar delays in train schedules. Primary highways clear. Few secondary roads blocked by high water, but no dangerous flood conditions.

Early reports included a few casualties. A young man and woman were killed at a railroad crossing in nearby Morristown. The accident happened at the height of the snowstorm, but officers were not sure it could be blamed on the storm.

Two women were injured, apparently not seriously, when a store marquee fell under the weight of snow as they were waiting for slow-moving city buses in downtown Knoxville.

BROKEN POWER lines brought severe discomfort to numerous families depending on electricity for heat as the temperature dropped to 25 degrees.

Railroad crews fought against heavy odds to push principal trains through the drifts hours behind schedule. Buses and automobiles were reported stalled along hundreds of miles of highways.

One train bringing the University of Kentucky football team here for a game with the University of Tennessee had to follow a walking signalman for the last 12 miles into the city.

The train halted at each signal block while the crewman walked ahead to the next to shift snow-clogged switches manually.

High Winds Whip County; Damage Light

Whistling winds bowling over Pickaway County at speeds estimated at more than 70 m.p.h. and carrying rain with them caused only minor damage Friday night.

Circleville was completely without automatic traffic control early Saturday due to a short in a power cable leading into the police station.

Linemen said the rain had caused the short. The traffic lights were back in use at about 9:15 a. m.

Other damage to lines in the county due to falling limbs was reported light, since most of the dead limbs were cleaned out earlier this year by storms.

One call was made late Friday in Orient, where a tree was on fire, apparently started by a falling power line.

Nation's 2 Largest Labor Unions Now Without Chiefs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — The nation's two largest labor organizations have been made pilotless in a sudden twist of fate.

William Green, 82-year-old president of the American Federation of Labor, died Friday just 12 days after the death of CIO President Philip Murray. Heart trouble was the cause in both cases.

It was Murray who took a leading part in the breakaway from Green's AFL in 1935. Murray played a major role in developing the industrial unionism of the late 1930s and making the Congress of Industrial Organizations a new and independent force in the union movement.

Both Green and Murray were coal miners and their success was intertwined with that of a third mine worker, John L. Lewis.

Lewis is president of the United Mine Workers. He is 72 and appears as active today as he ever has been.

ONE TOP UNION official, declining use of his name, said it was too early to make any predictions about the future course of the labor movement, but he said the death of Murray and Green might have real implications in repeated attempts to explore the feasibility of CIO-AFL unity. Such attempts have proved entirely fruitless since the split 17 years ago.

The AFL claims a membership of eight million, the CIO six million. If the prospect of unity is to be enhanced, it will depend on whom these two big labor groups choose as their next presidents.

Green had been ailing for months and much of his work passed into the hands of George Meany, 58-year-old secretary-treasurer.

Meany in effect has been running the AFL, with frequent contact with Green, for a year or more. It is this fact which makes Meany the most frequently mentioned prospect for AFL president.

The AFL Executive Council is expected to meet soon after Green's funeral next Monday. The council will likely designate a president to serve until the AFL annual convention next year.

George Harrison, 57-year-old president of the AFL's Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, is also mentioned as a possible successor to Green.

Allan S. Haywood, CIO executive vice president, and Walter Reuther, head of the CIO Auto Workers, are generally conceded to be front-runners for the job which Murray's death left vacant. Murray's successor probably will be named at the CIO annual convention in Atlantic City, Dec. 1.

Mitchell Urged To Resign Post

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — Rep. Hays (D-Ohio) called on Stephen Mitchell Saturday to resign immediately as Democratic national chairman "for the good of the Democratic party." Hays blamed Mitchell for the failure of more Democrats to win House seats. He wrote Mitchell:

"It is my considered opinion that if you had not mismanaged the campaign to the extent of using all available funds for television and other expenses, more Democrats would have been elected to the lower house."

Central Ohio Hit By High Winds

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22 — High winds ripped through Central Ohio Friday, reaching velocities up to 75 miles an hour and causing widespread minor damage.

Electric power was cut off in some areas. About a dozen trees toppled over in Columbus and the police department was flooded with calls reporting minor damage throughout the city. Heavy winds also were reported in Zanesville but there was no major damage.

Red Trucks Take Beating In Air Blows

SEOUL, Nov. 22 — Allied warplanes, swooping low over the highways and byways of North Korea, this week racked up the heaviest toll of Communist trucks in nearly a year.

The U. S. Fifth Air Force said 785 trucks were destroyed in the last seven days, the highest score since early January.

U. S. Sabrejets clashed with Communist Mig15s over North Korea Saturday and pilots claimed one Red warplane destroyed and another probably destroyed. It was the sixth straight day the Sabres scored against the Mig15s.

Ground fighting Saturday fell off to minor Red probing attacks. All were repulsed without loss of ground. Recent harassing tactics of the Chinese may be the prelude to a major Red drive on Sniper Ridge. Allied officers couldn't say for sure just what the Reds were up to.

In a week of fairly heavy air battles, U. S. F86 Sabrejets ran up a score of at least 14-1 against the Manchurian-based Mig15s.

The Air Force listed 14 Mig15s destroyed, one probably destroyed and four damaged. Only one Sabre was lost in air combat. Two prop driven Allied planes were shot down by Red ground fire, and two Sabres were lost to causes other than combat, probably mechanical failure.

Ex-Air Force Aide Indicted By Jury

DAYTON, Nov. 22 — A federal grand jury here Friday indicted a former civilian employee of the Air Force on a perjury charge, based on denials that he knew atomic spy Harry Gold was a Soviet espionage agent.

The indictment was returned against Benjamin Smilg, 39-year-old aeronautical engineer employed at the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton from 1936 until 1950, when he was suspended from duty.

OPS Aid Quits

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — William Kerber of Detroit resigned Friday as chief of the Office of Price Stabilization's iron and steel pricing branch.

Appointments Generally OK'd

Ike's Newest Choices Studied By Leaders

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — Generally favorable reaction from leaders of both major parties has greeted President-elect Eisenhower's three latest appointments to his high command.

Two of the three were for cabinet posts: Herbert Brownell Jr., New York lawyer and former aide to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, as attorney general, and George M. Humphrey, Cleveland industrialist, as secretary of the treasury.

Eisenhower also designated planner Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota as mutual security administrator.

Of Humphrey's selection, Democratic Sen. Byrd of Virginia said: "He is a most outstanding and able businessman, and I predict for him a most successful administration."

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder telegraphed congratulations to Humphrey, offering his assistance in making a smooth transfer of authority. Snyder called Humphrey "an administrator of sound judgment and experience."

MUTUAL Security Administrator Averell Harriman made a similar offer in a telephone call to Stassen. Harriman's office said the two agreed to an early meeting.

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, who lost the GOP presidential nomination to Eisenhower, said of Humphrey he was "pleased that an Ohioan was selected." Taft had no immediate comment on the other appointments.

Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, who bolted the Republican Party and now calls himself an independent, commented:

"The latest batch of Eisenhower appointments is but a continuation of placing reactionaries in complete control of his administration. Eisenhower apparently believes in placing big business in control of the government."

Former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau said he hopes the Eisenhower cabinet "doesn't go too much big business." Morgenthau, who served under the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, said he was "a little bit worried" about the possible makeup of the cabinet.

Cities Not Getting Tax Share, Claim

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22 — Ohio's cities aren't getting their share of sales tax revenues, the executive director of the Ohio Municipal League said Friday.

Allen E. Pritchard Jr. told legislative, finance and taxation, and streets and highways committees at a meeting here the league is disturbed by talk that the Legislature subsidizes cities and villages. Cities are entitled to one-third of sales tax revenues, he said, but added they don't get that much.

Top Secrets On U.S. Policy Given To Ike

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — Another major move in changing the U. S. administration from Democrats to Republicans was noted here Friday night.

It was disclosed that the White House has given President-elect Dwight Eisenhower three volumes of top-secret information on major American policy.

The volumes were described as up-to-the-minute handbooks prepared for the President's use and revised as necessary. The transfer of this information, a White House spokesman said, was part of President Truman's plan to shift administrations smoothly.

The spokesman said one volume deals with problems relating to individual countries and geographical areas, along with policy currently in force there. Another was said to contain similar data about problems like export-import control, manpower and petroleum supplies. The third was described as dealing with high-level government organization and precautions against subversion.

Sabrejet Tops 700 Mph. Twice

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Nov. 22 — Air Force Capt. J. Slade Nash twice bettered 700 miles an hour in setting a new and as yet unofficial world speed record in an F86D Sabrejet plane.

This was disclosed by Charles S. Logsdon, timer for the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and the National Aeronautics Association. The speed trials were flown over Salton Sea Wednesday. He said Nash zoomed over a measured course four times in 698.44 mph, 698.08, 702.65 and 700.49.

Quake Hits Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22 — A 45-minute rolling earthquake collapsed a house in Oceano and rocked the California coastal mountains for 500 miles before and after Friday midnight. No deaths or injuries were reported.

Position Of Ohio's Farmers On Supports To Be Debated

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22 — The position of Ohio farmers on price supports shapes up as a major issue at the 34th annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, opening here Monday.

Two men who represent different schools of thought on the subject are on the program—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) and Rep. Harold D. Cooley, (D-NC).

Taft, an advocate of flexible farm price supports, outlines his views Monday night.

Cooley, outgoing chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, had a large part in writing the present support law and framing the farm plank of the Democratic platform which advocated a guaranteed 90 per cent of parity. He speaks Tuesday night.

The delegates are expected to adopt a resolution on farm price supports. A Farm Bureau poll of 7,109 Ohio farmers this month showed 41 per cent favor the present law, 38 per cent are against supports altogether, and 15 per cent favor flexible supports. The other 6 per cent favored other programs.

RESOLUTIONS are scheduled to be adopted Wednesday morning. The resolutions committee has discussed possible stands on: establishment of an emergency fund to fight outbreak of disease in livestock; amendment of the conservancy act to provide popular vote on creation of conservancy districts; strengthening state laws controlling strip mines; higher leg-

GOP Watching Vote Battle In Michigan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — Senate Republicans, faced with a precarious margin in the new Congress, are keeping close watch on a post-election senatorial battle in Michigan.

Rep. Charles E. Potter, a Republican, ousted Democratic Sen. Blair Moody at Michigan's polls Nov. 4, according to an official canvass which had Potter ahead by 45,936 votes.

Friday, the Senate elections subcommittee, which had been asked to investigate what State Democratic Chairman Neil Staeble termed many irregularities in the count, requested that official notice of Potter's election be held up pending completion of a preliminary probe.

In Lansing, however, D. Hale Brake, acting chairman of the Senate Board of Canvass, turned down the committee request and said the board saw no reason to change its mind about certifying Potter.

Whether Potter is seated when the new Congress meets Jan. 3 could be vital in GOP plans to organize the Senate.

With Potter, the Republicans can count on at least 48 votes plus a vote by Vice President-elect Nixon in case of a tie. If Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, who now declares himself an independent, stays with his former Republican teammates in organizing the Senate, the Republicans would have 49 votes. Morse has not said with whom he will line up.

2 Unionists Indicted As Left Wingers

DAYTON, Nov. 22 — Two members of a union which was ousted from the CIO on charges of leftwing tendencies were in jail Saturday, accused of swearing falsely they were not Communists.

They are Everet Melvin Hupman, 38, of Clarksville, and Walter Cornelius Lohman, 41, of Dayton. They are members of the United Electrical Workers Union.

Neither could post $5,000 bond Friday night after their indictment by Dayton and Cincinnati federal grand juries, respectively, and were taken to the Troy jail.

Hupman is employed at the Frigidaire Division of General Motors Corp. in Dayton. He refused last April to tell the Ohio Un-American Activities Commission if he had ever been a Communist. Lohman is reportedly employed by Vernay Laboratories, electric thermostat manufacturers, of nearby Yellow Springs.

UNESCO Chieftain Resigns Position

PARIS, Nov. 22 — Jaime Torres-Bodet resigned Saturday as director general of the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in protest against its failure to approve his budget. Two leading members of the UNESCO executive board also quit, splitting the organization wide open.

Torres-Bodet, a Mexican, had asked UNESCO's seventh annual conference to approve $20,400,000 expenditures for 1953 and 1954. Delegates voted Friday, however, to set an $18 million ceiling for the 68-nation organization.

Eden Doubts China Reds To OK Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 22 — British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden doubts that the Chinese Communists will accept the Indian proposal for a compromise solution of the Korean War prisoner deadlock.

But the top British diplomat feels that a Red Chinese refusal may be altogether a bad thing since it might weaken ties of sympathy between the Peiping Communist regime and the Indian government.

Taft Said Irked On Appointments

Ike Taps Dewey Aides For Top Posts; Ohio's Role Studied

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — President-elect Eisenhower's choice of former aides of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for cabinet posts has prompted new speculation on the future role of Sen. Robert A. Taft.

With five prospective cabinet members named, Taft has yet to place a man from the list he reportedly submitted to Eisenhower at the latter's request.

On the other hand, two close associates of Dewey have been assigned key jobs—John Foster Dulles as secretary of state and Herbert Brownell Jr. as attorney general. A third who sided with Dewey and Eisenhower against Taft in the fight for the GOP presidential nomination earlier in the year, Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon, was named for secretary of the interior.

Although Taft is maintaining a "no comment" attitude publicly, friends said he was irked by the attention paid to Dewey, an intra-party political enemy who had a lot to do with the Ohio senator's defeat for the nomination.

FOR THAT reason, friends said Taft may seek the GOP floor leadership, where he would have a personal hand daily on legislation instead of exerting the remote, but powerful, control he has exercised in the role of chairman of the GOP Policy Committee.

As president, Eisenhower would have to deal directly with the Senate floor leader on legislation. If Taft wants that job, some Republicans say he can get it with little more than a token fight.

Taft was described by friends

Reds Claim New Industry Center

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Communist Peiping radio claims the Manchurian rail center of Harbin, once a refuge for White Russians across the Soviet frontier, has been transformed into an industrial center in three years.

The Red broadcast said that before "liberation" by the Communists in 1948, Harbin had only one large factory, a railway workshop.

Now, the Reds say, industrial output is five times above the 1949 level. Mentioned specifically were a modern flax mill, a machine tool plant, and a tractor parts plant.

He is 54-year-old Dr. H. A. Gerdess. His job is to build tiny Kandala, an almost unknown town in far Western India into a harbor center which will cut 200 miles off the transfer distances from the sea to New Delhi and other northern cities.

Bishop Chides U.S. For Moral Laxity

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 22 — A Methodist bishop says this country must rise above what he called its lax morality in order to be an effective force for world peace.

"We must purge our national life," said Bishop Richard C. Raines of Indianapolis in a report to the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church. Citing gambling, drinking, divorce and civic corruption in the U. S., Bishop Raines said there was "no precedent in history for thinking such a nation can be used of God to bring peace and good will to earth."

Ton-Mile Tax Being Urged By Ohio Panel

Program Commission Notes Other Changes For State's Benefit

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22 — You can bet there'll be a lot of talk, pro and con, on the controversial ton-mile truck tax proposal in the next Legislature.

The Ohio Program Commission Friday formally recommended lawmakers pass the tax, figured on the weight of a truck and the distance it travels. Receipts would be used to build and maintain Ohio roads.

The proposal long has been backed by Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

The measure was killed by the last legislature.

The commission met here for two days, drawing up legislative recommendations. They included:

1—Creation of a committee of lawmakers to study the aid for the aged program.

2—Revamping of the state highway department to provide better administration of road projects.

3—Four-year terms for governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, and treasurer. The state auditor now serves four years.

4—FOUR-YEAR terms for state senators, who now serve two years. There was no recommendation regarding state representatives, who now serve two years.

5—A $25,000 a year salary for the governor, $15,000 salaries for elective state officials, and $12,000 salaries for department heads.

Next January the governor's salary jumps to $20,000 and elective state officials to $12,000.

6—Transferring from the state auditor to the state finance director accounting and current auditing, with the state finance department issuing warrants now issued by the auditor.

7—Creation of a two-party, three-member civil service commission to replace the two-member commission Ohio now has. The governor would appoint the commission.

8—Calling additional sessions of the General Assembly to consider a state budget, with the budget sessions coming between the regular sessions.

Ray Davis Reminds Republicans They Now Have Big Opportunity

Local Republicans have been reminded by their top spokesman that only long-range policies aimed to "win the full confidence of all sections of the public" can give the GOP "an established chance to show what it can do toward bettering things in the years ahead."

Ray Davis, chairman of Pickaway County Republican executive committee, underlined the necessity of strengthening the party by picking men and women who can do a job well instead of picking them on the basis of personal favor or political preference.

"Now that the election is over and there's no longer reason to doubt the sincerity of such an announcement," Davis said, "I hope all who shared in the overwhelming victory will look ahead to the GOP's big opportunity.

"I hope all of our party will keep in mind that our main goal is to win the full confidence of all sections of the public, so we can make the most of the opportunity now in our hands."

"FIRST POLICY in this direction, I believe, is to dedicate ourselves to the idea that men and women have to be appointed to various tasks on the basis of the ability they show. We must not waste the GOP's splendid opportunity through the years ahead by picking people for positions merely because they happen to be personal friends or because of political influence.

"At short range, many may argue it is the age-old way of American political organizations when they want to add power to their ranks—but this, as we all know, has been proven false by the American voters themselves.

"Only the long-range view is the one that can strengthen the party from the foundation up, and weld into its own policies the hopes of those who have picked the Republican party to lead the nation through the uncertain times already here.

"Under this long-range planning party gains may not be so evident over a period of time, but they will be far more solid—and consequently will in time firmly establish the Republican party for the full turn it deserves at the wheel.

"Best of all, it will also be the policy designed to serve the people with maximum efficiency through difficult days sure to come.

"In Pickaway County and everywhere else in the nation, the Republican party will begin next March to determine what sort of a party it is going to be many years hence."

Taxing Districts May Be Merged

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — Ohio and Michigan probably will be set up as separate districts under Internal Revenue Bureau reorganization.

A bureau source said headquarters for the Michigan district probably will be in Detroit and for the Ohio district in Cleveland. At present, Michigan forms a single collection district, with headquarters in Detroit. Ohio is divided into four districts, Cleveland, Toledo, Columbus and Cincinnati.

good idea as to how the (new line) proposal is going to go."

Council, at last meeting, authorized Gerhardt to proceed with this phase of the bypass problem as the first step. Some councilmen privately indicated they hoped the corporation line phase would serve as a trial balloon on the basic idea of the bypass.

It was too early to judge the extent to which Container's outright opposition would affect the main proposal.

Container's opposition was foreshadowed at the last meeting of city council when Schroeder and Vernon Hawkes both indicated the plan faced the firm with baffling problems.

Hawkes at that time said the proposed route for the bypass would eliminate approximately half of the space now used in the firm's straw storage yard.

Ralph Cummins Takes Part In Operation Frosty

Winter weather added to the realism of "Exercise Frosty," a recent Army field maneuver in Austria which included Pvt. Ralph E. Cummins whose wife, Dixie Lee, lives in Duval.

Marked throughout by frequent rain, sleet and snow, the exercise gave Austrian-based American soldiers field training in the actual terrain they are guarding.

U.S. Army units took the roles of both aggressor and defending forces in the problem, which was conducted in the Salzkammergut mountains.

Observers at the operation included Fred Korth, assistant Secretary of the Army for manpower and reserve forces, and Lt. Gen. Charles L. Bolte, commanding general of the U.S. Seventh Army.

PRIVATE Cummins, a 57 millimeter rifleman in the 350th Infantry Regiment's Company F, has been in Austria since July.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Cummins of Ashville Route 2, Pvt. Cummins entered the Army in January of this year.

Place Of Music In Religion To Be Sermon Topic

"Music in Christian Worship" is to be the theme of the sermon Sunday during services in the church of Christ, meeting at 159 East Main street. This will be an illustrated chart lesson showing the history of music in the worship of God's people throughout the ages.

The following outline of the lesson is given by Evangelist Charles Cochran:

"Music may be divided into two classes, vocal and instrumental. Vocal music has been used in every dispensation to sing praises to God and to magnify His holy name. It fulfilled a very important place in the life of the early Christians, being commanded as a part of their worship directed to God (Col. 3:16; Eph. 5:19)."

"Instrumental music was first introduced into the worship by David under the law of Moses. During the New Testament period there is no record of its use whatsoever in the worship of the early church. It was not until about the year 670 AD that Pope Vitalian introduced the organ into the worship of the Catholic church. The Greek Catholic church never generally accepted its use. It is used by most religious bodies today."

Bible Words To Live By

Isaiah 30:15—"In quietness and in confidence shall be thy strength."

In a day of strife and tumult, doubt and fear, we all need some sure source of strength for the duties of every day and confidence for the future. This I find in my favorite verse, though like most Christians, I have many other favorite verses and love the whole of God's Word.

Happy is the man whose trust is in the God and Father of us all, and who knows that through his faith in Christ as Saviour and Lord he has found the secret of joy and usefulness in life. Where else can we look for true and lasting peace of mind and heart and to whom else can we go for assurance for this life and the next.

Whatever the tumult without, the Christian can have peace and poise within. No matter what may be the test he has access to resources beyond himself that are unfailing and everlasting. Try this life of faith yourself and you, too, will find the promise is true, "In quietness and in confidence shall be thy strength."

Calvary Church To Hear Theme On Evangelism

"Evangelism" will be the theme of worship service Sunday in Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church.

This is an emphasis of the "Larger Evangelism Program" of the Evangelical United Brethren denomination, a part of which the church at present is engaged in under the "Strengthen The Sunday School Program." This program was begun last Friday evening and will continue through Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

In Sunday's service, the Rev. James Herbst will present the need for prayer for the church and the cause of Christ in this present day and will encourage the people through the entry into fellowship of prayer to support this program. Opportunity will be given to sign a prayer covenant card as a part of this great fellowship.

Bible reading book marks, giving the Bible passages from Thanksgiving till Christmas for universal Bible reading will also be passed out to the members of the congregation.

The pastor will be assisted in the service by Dale DeLong, Sunday school superintendent, and Miss Minnie Wilkerson, pianist.

At 7:30 p. m., officers and teachers of the Sunday school who are participating in the "Strengthen The Sunday School Program" will meet in the Sunday school annex for the second of a self-analysis services. The Rev. Howard Buckley, pastor of Ohio Avenue Evangelical United Brethren church of Columbus, will be present to continue in the direction of this program.

This program will continue through Monday and Tuesday nights, with the members of the entire congregation invited to be present for the final service at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Union Service Of Thanksgiving Due Wednesday

Annual celebration of Thanksgiving Day in Circleville will begin with a Union service of praise and thanksgiving at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in Presbyterian church, East Mound street. Sponsored by the Circleville Ministers Association, the service will welcome all members and friends of the churches of Circleville to "gather together."

The Rev. Donald Mitchell, host pastor and President of the Ministers Association, will preside over the service of Thanksgiving.

The Rev. James A. Herbst, pastor of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church, will preach the sermon on the subject: "For This I Am Thankful."

The Rev. Carl Wilson, pastor of First Evangelical United Brethren church and secretary of the Ministerium, will be in charge of the reading of Scripture and prayers.

Under the direction of Mrs. Clark Will, the choir of the host church will sing a harvest anthem and will lead the congregation in the singing of hymns of Thanksgiving. At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L. Huston will play "Ode to Thanksgiving," "Pilgrim Song of Hope" and a fantasy on "Come Ye Thankful People."

All other local pastors plan to be in attendance and urge that a most cordial invitation be extended to all of Circleville citizenry to join together in this Union service to give thanks unto Almighty God for all the blessings which He has bestowed upon His people here and throughout the world.

'Thanks' Theme To Be Heard In Lutheran Service

The Rev. George Troutman will lead the members of Trinity Lutheran church Sunday in worship service.

His sermon theme will be, "One Out of Ten Giveth Thanks," based on the incident recorded in the gospel of Luke, the 17th chapter, verses eleven through nineteen.

It tells how Christ healed the ten lepers who besought Him to heal them; and when they were healed only one of the ten returned to give thanks.

"We should be prompted to give thanks to God at this Thanksgiving Season as we ponder and review the past year of abundant blessings from on high," says the Rev. Mr. Troutman.

"It is our duty and responsibility to assemble ourselves together this Thanksgiving Eve and, as grateful Christians, give thanks to God the giver of every good and perfect gift."

"Any thoughtful individual will want to give thanks to God not only daily for His many blessings, but especially now at this Thanksgiving service."

At Sunday's worship and at the Wednesday Thanksgiving Eve service there will be a special ingathering of food and clothing for the needy. The food will be distributed by the Luther League on Thanksgiving morning to those needy families in the church and community.

Jesus' Thanksgiving -- and Ours

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 11.

When John the Baptist, confined in prison because he had criticized Herod's licentious way of living, heard about Jesus' works, he sent two men to ask Christ if He was indeed the Messiah.

Jesus answered the messengers: "Go and show John again those things which ye do see and hear—the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the deaf hear, the dead are raised up."

When the two men had left, Jesus said to the multitudes, "Verily I say unto you, among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist."

Jesus' Thanksgiving prayer began: "I thank Thee, O Father, because Thou hast hid these things from the wise and revealed them unto babes." MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 126:3.

VISITING THE COUNTIES
AN INDIANA MANUFACTURER, Fred Zeig, is the first man, so far as known, to have visited all of the 3,074 counties in the United States. He started traveling as a young man, in 1947 found he had been in more than 70 per cent of the nation's counties and decided, in the course of his business trips, to make it 100. His final county was one in New Mexico—Los Alamos.

It was a curious coincidence that just as Mr. Zeig visited his 3,074th county, the total number dropped to 3,073. That was because Armstrong County in South Dakota, which had fewer than 100 inhabitants, went out of existence. Adjoining Dewey County annexed it as the result of a vote in the November 4 election.

Most persons seldom stop to consider that the county is the largest division of local government in the United States, except in Louisiana, where the corresponding unit is the Parish. The word "county" originated centuries ago when a county signified the domain of a count.

Mr. Zeig's visitation of counties must be set down as one of the pleasantest of hobbies, which few would have the time, the means or the vocation to pursue on a national scale.

DOLLAR CONFIDENCE
IF THE EISENHOWER administration practices economy and manages the money soundly enough to stabilize the dollar, citizens of the United States will no longer be embarrassed by a monetary unit worth less than that of Canada, a nation with less than one-tenth the population of the U.S. The Canadian dollar, worth $1.02 in terms of the depreciated U. S. dollar, has already weakened. It was worth more than $1.04 in mid-August. That was the climax of a period of 30 months during which United States capital was flowing into Canada to take advantage of the Canadian boom and of lower Canadian taxes.

Now, with the Canadian dollar weakening slightly, the capital movement has been reversed. The flow is back toward the United States. Investors believe the U. S. dollar will gain in value and soon wind up at the traditional value over the Canadian dollar.

The significance of this is not so much in the monetary relationship between the two countries as in the renewed confidence in the American dollar. If Washington can do what Ottawa has done — produce budget surpluses, reduce the national debt and lower taxes—confidence in the dollar will continue to grow.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG
news behind the news
By RAY TUCKER
Editor's Note: Every Saturday this veteran Washington correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' letters of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—"Why do not the House and Senate elect the chairmen of their committees," asks M. T. of Elizabeth, N. J., "instead of giving such important positions to them under the seniority system? Wouldn't that advance younger, more energetic men, and less hidebound members?"
Answer: This question was raised by the Democrats in the campaign as an argument against the election of Eisenhower. They maintained that, if the GOP controlled both houses of Congress, he would suffer from the fact that so many committee heads would be extreme conservatives or outright isolationists.
Despite its admitted faults, however, progress by seniority seems to be the only practical procedure. Otherwise, a President seeking tight control of the legislative branch could — and might — use his influence to place his own men in positions of power. That would upset the structure of a balanced government, with the legislators having a check on the executive agencies.
The election of committee chairmen would be conducted with log-rolling by economic and regional groups, and there is too much of that on Capitol Hill now.
Moreover, if the committee membership wishes, it can always override a chairman, for he has only one vote. Time and again, committees have reported out measures or authorized investigations in the face of opposition from the nominal boss.
TAFT'S POSITION — "Why does Senator Taft want to be the Republican leader of the Senate," asks G. F. of Sandusky, O., "as well as head of the Policy Committee? Is he simply grasping for personal power?"
Answer: The explanation for Senator Taft's leadership try is simple. The chairmanship of the GOP Policy Committee was a responsible job when a Fair-Deal President sat in the White House, for it enabled Taft to provide effective opposition and to give direction to his Party's course.
With Eisenhower in the White House, basic policy will be fixed there instead of on Capitol Hill, although Congress may modify or reject it. As Senate majority leader, the Ohioan would be both an adviser and pilot of White House legislation.

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days
The world seems to have developed the habit of sustained prices at the cost of the American economy. The desire of most countries is that this rich market for raw materials should be bled white in the interest of what are called "under-developed" countries. It is another form of subsidy out of the earnings of the American people. An excellent example is the high price of coffee, which is so high only because our government has encouraged Brazil to enrich itself at the expense of the American people. The only effective way to restore a free market for such commodities, would be for the American people to reject the blackmail of "no subsidies—no friendship."

In the United Nations, this question comes up from time to time. Any drop in prices creates consternation among the under-developed raw materials producing countries. For instance, Fazal Elahi of Pakistan, recently made this point concerning such countries:
"They have apprehensions of further serious repercussions on their economies as well as on their development projects if there is even a mild recession in industrialized countries."

Naturally, countries that have accustomed themselves to inflationary prices, to subsidies, to Point Four give-away programs will resent any effort to return to a free market, in which the law of supply and demand is permitted by governments to operate. The give-away program is, in its economic effects, a dumping activity designed to place surplus goods in markets which cannot afford to buy them.

Whenever a country engages in such activities, it must anticipate that when it ceases to dump, when it stops giving away, it will pull the carpet from under the inflationary process and will produce not only an economic recession but political enmity. The politicians in those countries who built their strength on the sands of inflation find themselves in the quicksands of depression. This, in essence, is what happened in Europe under the Marshall Plan.

It is for this reason that Gonzalo J. Facio of Costa Rica advocated a price floor to protect the producers in the poorer countries. As such a universal, United Nations arranged price floor, let us say for coffee, could only mean a siphoning off of the wealth of the United States, the answer here can only be in sales resistance. In a word, if this country is to be forced to pay an "artificial" price for such a commodity as coffee, the American people can upset all calculations by rejecting coffee as a beverage. There is always danger that "artificial" prices kill the trade because the consumer is under no compulsion to buy a particular commodity. For thousands of years, most of the human race lived without coffee.

This happened with both silk and wool. Silk was affected not so much by the high price as by an anti-Japanese boycott and war. Silk substitutes, rayon, nylon, and even types of cotton cloth with fancy trade names, grew in popularity and usefulness. Pure silk products disappeared. This generation has little familiarity with the silk stocking which, to earlier generations, was the mark of gentility. Today, most women wear nylons which give them sweaty feet (Continued on Page Seven)

These Days
The world seems to have developed the habit of sustained prices at the cost of the American economy. The desire of most countries is that this rich market for raw materials should be bled white in the interest of what are called "under-developed" countries. It is another form of subsidy out of the earnings of the American people. An excellent example is the high price of coffee, which is so high only because our government has encouraged Brazil to enrich itself at the expense of the American people. The only effective way to restore a free market for such commodities, would be for the American people to reject the blackmail of "no subsidies—no friendship."

Female Hormones Being Tested In Disease Causing Nosebleeds

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
NOSEBLEEDS are not usually dangerous, and generally stop by themselves if the blood clots properly. Other types of nosebleed result from serious disorders of the blood or blood vessels, and present a different problem altogether.
A common cause of nosebleed is an injury to the nose. Certain body conditions may, however, predispose a person to nosebleeds when an injury is not the immediate cause. These conditions include infections, clotting difficulties of the blood, and diseases such as rheumatic fever or leukemia.

Usually Hereditary
One of the most difficult types of nosebleed to check, though not too common, comes from a condition known as telangiectasia. This disease is usually hereditary, but is not apt to show up before a child has reached his teens. It is most likely to occur during the 30's and 40's. It usually starts with a thinning of the walls of the blood vessels. This makes them rupture and bleed easily.

The inside of the nose in these people is a brilliant red. If the disease is also present in the skin, it is a red-violet shade.
Usually this disease can occur in the skin or the intestine, but is also fairly common in the nose. Persons affected with it tell of spitting or vomiting blood, or passing blood in the urine or stool. Some may even have brain hemorrhage. Dilated blood vessels beneath the finger-nails usually give a clue that this condition may be causing the nosebleeds.

These nosebleeds are persistent. Many times pressure packs have to be kept in the nose many days, and even then they may not stop the bleeding.
X-rays, radium, and snake venom have been offered as measures to control this disease, but the results have been very slight.

Recently, it has been shown that nosebleeds from telangiectasia can be controlled with female hormones. In a small group of patients tested, hormone treatment reduced the number and severity of the nosebleeds. One patient has not had a nosebleed for the past year.

The way the hormones work is not known. However, further tests will be made, and if they are equally successful, those suffering from telangiectasia can look forward to relief.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
P. G.: My sister is suffering from lupus erythematosus. Can you tell me something about this disease?
Answer: Lupus erythematosus is a disorder which is characterized by the formation of pinkish- or reddish-colored patches of various sizes and shapes. When these patches heal, they leave thin, white scars. The eruption usually appears on the face, particularly on the cheeks and the bridge of the nose, and does not itch or cause any other symptoms.

The cause of lupus erythematosus is not definitely known. It usually occurs between the ages of 10 and 40, and is more common in women than in men. The disease is chronic and, in most instances, cannot be permanently cleared up, there being a marked tendency for the eruption to recur.

X-ray treatments seem to be the most satisfactory way to clear up the eruption temporarily. A lotion containing zinc sulphate, sulphur, and sulphurated potassium is helpful. Radium has also been used in treating the disorder. The new drugs, ACTH and cortisone, have been very helpful in treating this disease.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO
IT WAS no surprise to Rawls that, in the morning, that Jenkyn had made his escape. The cargo had been transferred, and now the Astrod had prepared to pull out, leaving her sister ship behind. Rawls, as usual, was at the wheel.
"If you try any tricks," Whirter warned him grimly, "I'll shoot you. I would follow such a course with regret, mind of the very real services you have rendered us. But I count the Cause bigger than you or myself or all of us put together. Make no mistake about that."
He meant it, as Rawls knew. But he'd made up his own mind as completely. This had gone far enough—the Astrod, the whole rash scheme. Mad as it had been, Whirter had gotten this far, and he might manage to win. Once embarked overland, his men would have no other choice than to back him to the limit, fighting like devils when called upon to do so. If the Indians were convinced that he was on their side, they might wipe out the gold camps, and go on from there to such an orgy of terror as Whirter had first conceived, while Whirter made a run back downriver with the loot that he hoped would revive the faltering Confederacy.
No one could deny that Whirter was giving all he had, risking his life at every turn, for something in which he believed. Now that Kathleen was fairly safe, Rawls knew that he could do no less. When Earshaw became convinced that disaster had overtaken the Astrod, he would take the Varina back to the Missouri, if it were humanly possible to do so. Loaded now with the proper cargo for Fort Benton, Earshaw would get it there if he could.
There was still one way to put a stop to Whirter's ambitious plan. If the Astrod was run hard aground, so solidly that it could not be gotten off, the Indians would think of the lot of guns and whiskey ready for the taking. And in their present mood, they'd take it.
It had to be done today, before the meeting could be held and an alliance worked out with Whirter. Rawls had no illusions as to his own chances, once he wrecked the Astrod. Like the others, he would not be going back.
He'd try to find Kathleen for a last word, in the darkness before dawn, before transferring to the Astrod. In the confusion, he hadn't been able to locate her. There had not been much time. Perhaps it was as well, but it was hard to come to the end of a dream, to know that the awakening of cold reality had forever shattered it.
He could almost feel her beside him, as she had stood so many times, watching the river, the moving shores in ever-changing panorama. It seemed as if he could smell the perfume that he always associated with her, a subtle fragrance, bewitching as her quick smile.
This was no dream. He grew cold with realization, finding her beside him.
"You don't seem glad to see me, Denny," Kathleen murmured. "Am I as dreadful as the glimpse of a Sioux?"

Try, Stop Me

"Pop" Gabardine, coach of a midwestern football team, had seen his charges trampled eight Saturday afternoons in a row, the last time by a humiliating score of 55 to 0. When the squad regathered the following Monday, "Pop" said bitterly, "For the last game of the season, we might as well forget all the trick plays I tried to teach you dimwits. We're going back to fundamentals. Let's go! Lesson number one: this object I am holding is a football. Lesson number two: At this point, Coach Gabardine was interrupted by a worried fullback in the front row, who pleaded, "Hey, Pop, not so fast!"
A fan asked French novelist Andre Maurois, "What is the best way to write?" Maurois answered, "From left to right." Another lady wanted to know if Monsieur Maurois believed in luck. "But certainly, madam," he replied. "How else could I explain the success of my competitors?"

Net Farm Income For 1953 Expected 5 Percent Lower

Labor Costs, Fertilizer To Increase

Farmers Advised To Begin Now In Getting Supplies

Farmers' net income for 1953 probably will average five percent less than in 1952.

Pointing out that this is the prospect for all U.S. farmers, Mervin G. Smith of Ohio State University added that Ohio farmers' net income may drop even more than five percent.

Ohio farmers market a smaller proportion of products from crops that have been increasing in the dollar volume sold.

While costs of farm operation are edging up even now, the value of farm marketings will remain about the same. In 1953, farmers probably will sell more commodities at slightly lower prices than this year.

ACTUAL buying power in the United States next year may be down six or seven percent from 1952 buying power for each farm person. That would be a 20 percent drop from the peak of farm buying power in 1947.

Purchasing power of non-farm people will be about eight percent more next year than it was in 1947.

At the same time, farm labor and fertilizer lead the list of items that probably will increase farming costs in 1953.

Economists expect farm labor to be three to five percent higher next year than during 1952.

Fertilizer prices probably will edge up two to four percent. Labor costs in 1952 increased seven percent over the previous year, while fertilizer prices averaged three percent higher in 1952 than in 1951.

Farmers are advised to arrange early for next year's fertilizers. They will want to use more next year to increase production.

Supplies of nitrogen will be about 11 percent larger in 1953. There will be about 11 percent more phosphate and 17 percent more potash.

Feed prices next year probably will go up. Timothy, brome grass and alfalfa seed probably will be higher. Alfalfa, ladino clover and seed for winter cover crops will be lower in price in 1953.

Pesticides, building materials and interest rates in 1953 probably will stay near 1952 levels. Farm land values also are expected to remain near present levels.

Local Sailor Commended For Work In Korea

Leonard E. Coffland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Coffland of 225 Logan street, has received a commendation for his work while stationed in a hospital at Inchon, Korea, near the front lines.

Coffland, serving with the Navy as a hospital mate, received the commendation from his commanding officer for "intelligence and leadership in the execution of your duties which greatly aided the rapid recovery of the patients on orthopedic service."

The commendation, made part of Coffland's service record, covered a period from July 13 to October 13. During the month of September alone he gave 1,100 treatments for wounded patients sent back from the front lines.

Coffland also holds the South Korean Presidential Citation.

Hot Weather Cause Of Poor Corn Pollination

Pickaway County farmers who harvested somewhat less than a bumper crop of corn this year can lay the blame wholly upon the weather.

Hot, dry weather produced stalks without ears and cobs without corn in many Ohio corn fields this fall.

However, poor pollination was more to blame for earless stalks and cornless cobs than poor growing. Corn fields were hot and dry when tassels were coming out and when pollen was moving to silks. In some cases, pollen died shortly after tassels emerged. In other cases, silks dried up and pollen would not cling to them. Tassels came out in some fields sooner than silks. When the silks emerged, most of the pollen was gone.

MULTIPLE ears, reported by many farmers, developed when the main ear was not adequately pollinated. The ear shoots always are there on some hybrid corn. Farmers usually do not notice them.

Shoots developed this year and produced a number of cobs on one shank when the main ear failed to develop.

Farmers who find corn on butt-ends of ears but not at the tips have found cases of incomplete pollination. Silks at the tips of ears come out last and are pollinated last.

Although faulty pollination produced most of the damage this year, there were some cases where pollination was complete, but kernels were not developed at ear tips. Under poor growing conditions, some hybrids supply nutrition only to the butt-ends of ears. Ear tips are permitted to starve so at least some kernels can develop completely.

Cases of multiple ears and undeveloped grains at ear tips were evidence of the plants' attempts to make up for difficult conditions.

Average American Now Taking 7th Inning Stretch From Fear

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—The explosion of an H-bomb weapon in the Pacific may have startled the diplomatic world. The average American, however, took little more note of it than if, on a summer night, he had glanced up and seen a star fall.

Previous tidings of other new and marvelous ways in which the human race could destroy itself have exhausted his capacity for terror and dismay.

The ordinary mortal today is tired of being frightened by graphic previews of what may befall him. He has eaten the bread of crisis so long it has come to have a stale taste.

People were so upset over the atom bomb that the wider threat of the H-bomb can hardly appall them. You have to rest from fear sometime, and the average man feels like taking a seventh-inning stretch right now.

"So maybe I'll get conked sometime by an H-bomb instead of an atom bomb," he thinks. "What difference does it make to a fly whether it is swatted with a rolled up newspaper or a baseball bat?"

He is also losing his ability to marvel at the fresh marvels of science, because so many of its wonders turn out to be blunders.

This has been a fearful and tremendous century of strident and continuous change, multiple death and vast growth. It is perhaps the most adventurous and exploratory century in history, one that has thrown a small candle of light into the darkness of strange new worlds which seem to many more terrifying than inviting.

A man who is only as old as this century—just 52 years—has endured a lot. He has weathered at least three depressions and two and a half world wars. When he pauses to catch his breath and look back, it seems to him that nothing has remained unchanged with the possible exception of mother love.

The safe-seeming world he was born into has vanished long ago. He has seen the horse and buggy replaced by the jet plane, the stereoscope slide give way to the television image, chewing tobacco succeeded by bubble gum.

The key phrase of that sturdy, distant time was "All I want is a fair chance, an opportunity to show what I can do." Badgered and bedeviled by these years of ceaseless change, a 52-year-old man today worked fewer hours than his father did. But his leisure also is now tormented by fears of new dooms his grandfather never dreamed of even in his nightmares.

It is no wonder that this middle-aged man in a middle-aged century now often yearns, most of all, for some form of security, a sanctuary from the threat of immense danger that has palled his times almost as long as he can remember. Even the young, ordinarily venturesome, are infected today by the craving for a kind of security no generation ever really has had in the long hard lot of mankind on this earth.

The ordinary mortal would like science to quit dealing up fresh mass-death instruments and build him instead an escape hatch from the perils of the twentieth century.

Nation's 2 Largest Labor Unions Now Without Chiefs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(P)—The nation's two largest labor organizations have been made pitiless in a sudden twist of fate.

William Green, 82-year-old president of the American Federation of Labor, died Friday just 12 days after the death of CIO President Philip Murray. Heart trouble was the cause in both cases.

It was Murray who took a leading part in the breakaway from Green's AFL in 1935. Murray played a major role in developing the industrial unionism of the late 1930s and making the Congress of Industrial Organizations a new and independent force in the union movement.

Both Green and Murray were coal miners and their success was intertwined with that of a third mine worker, John L. Lewis.

Lewis is president of the United Mine Workers. He is 72 and appears as active today as he ever has been.

ONE TOP UNION official, declining use of his name, said it was too early to make any predictions about the future course of the labor movement, but he said the death of Murray and Green might have real implications in repeated attempts to explore the feasibility of CIO-AFL unity. Such attempts have proved entirely fruitless since the split 17 years ago.

The AFL claims a membership of eight million, the CIO six million. If the prospect of unity is to be enhanced, it will depend on whom these two big labor groups choose as their next presidents.

Green had been ailing for months and much of his work passed into the hands of George Meany, 58-year-old secretary-treasurer.

Meany in effect has been running the AFL, with frequent contact with Green, for a year or more. It is this fact which makes Meany the most frequently mentioned prospect for AFL president.

The AFL Executive Council is expected to meet soon after Green's funeral next Monday. The council will likely designate a president to serve until the AFL annual convention next year.

George Harrison, 57-year-old president of the AFL's Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, is also mentioned as a possible successor to Green.

Allan S. Haywood, CIO executive vice president, and Walter Reuther, head of the CIO Auto Workers, are generally conceded to be front-runners for the job which Murray's death left vacant. Murray's successor probably will be named at the CIO annual convention in Atlantic City, Dec. 1.

Mitchell Urged To Resign Post

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(P)—Rep. Hays (D-Ohio) called on Stephen Mitchell Saturday to resign immediately as Democratic national chairman "for the good of the Democratic party." Hays blamed Mitchell for the failure of more Democrats to win House seats. He wrote Mitchell:

"It is my considered opinion that if you had not mismanaged the campaign to the extent of using all available funds for television and other expenses, more Democrats would have been elected to the lower house."

Central Ohio Hit By High Winds

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22.—(P)—High winds ripped through Central Ohio Friday, reaching velocities up to 75 miles an hour and causing widespread minor damage.

Electric power was cut off in some areas. About a dozen trees toppled over in Columbus and the police department was flooded with calls reporting minor damage throughout the city. Heavy winds also were reported in Zanesville but there was no major damage.

Container Opposes Bypass; Esmeralda Still Undecided

Container Corp. of America, Circleville's largest industrial firm, announced it "cannot endorse or approve" a proposed plan to build a bypass for Route 23 around the western edge of the city.

Almost simultaneously, Esmeralda Canning Co. said the project would "result in problems which—at this particular time—we don't know how to solve."

Container's outright opposition and Esmeralda's uncertainty cast serious shadow over plans for the highway change even before they had an opportunity to pass their preliminary hurdle.

The city is currently conducting a check to determine if an estimated 30 property owners affected by a proposed change in the city limits will sanction the revision. Under terms of the state's offer to build the bypass, the city would withdraw a western portion of the corporation line.

CONTAINER'S opposition, outlined by Henry J. Schroeder, plant manager, ignored the corporation line issue and was aimed directly at the basic plan itself. The Container official said:

"The routing of Highway 23 through the storage yard of Container Corp. would create serious operating problems and costs which would jeopardize the plant's position in a highly competitive manufacturing field."

"The effects of this program could well threaten the operation of one of Circleville's oldest and most stable industries that contributes in excess of $1 million annually to Circleville and Pickaway County in the form of wages and purchases. In light of these facts, the company cannot endorse or approve the present bypass plans that are being considered by the city council."

The Container firm's top executive declined to elaborate on the statement but said the company plans further conferences in the immediate future and "may have more to say next week."

Schroeder said officials of the firm's home office will be here to participate in the talks, but added the conferences "would not affect the statement as given."

IT HAS been pointed out Schroeder's reference could also mean Container may be preparing some counter proposal through which the organization could cooperate with the project.

As far as giving encouragement to bypass supporters, Esmeralda's attitude as expressed by James I. Smith, head of the firm, was only a little more cheering than the Container reaction. At the same time, however, Smith emphasized he is personally "strong for the bypass plan" and anxious to have Esmeralda approve it if a way can be found.

"The idea as it stands now," Smith said, "catches us coming and going, and although I'm anxious to see the bypass plan go through we naturally have to protect our interests when necessary. I'm all for the bypass if I can find it possible to support it without having the project hurt us too badly."

Smith explained the bypass plan, in addition to other ways, would involve the firm "coming and going" by blocking a plan it had to construct its own sewage plant along the Scioto River.

He said the state, as part of the current anti-pollution drive, "has been after us to do something about the sewage we're now dumping into the river—and to remedy this situation we have plans to build our own sewage plant."

"The proposed bypass route, however, is drawn directly through the spot we've had in mind for this very important branch of our operations."

SMITH SAID it appears the only way Esmeralda could cooperate with the state proposals—both for Route 23 and the anti-pollution requirements—would be to have "the city connect us with the municipal sewage system."

"The basic idea of the bypass is certainly a good one though," Smith continued, "and at any rate Route 23 certainly ought to be taken off Court street."

He pointed out he has vital interests in the bypass route at the plant, at his farm and at his home on the southern edge of the city.

"At my home we have the highway in front of our house," he said, "and we certainly wouldn't object to having it behind our house instead—as it would be under the bypass plan."

"The catch is, how far behind the house would it be?"

IN SUBMITTING aerial photos for study here recently, the state highway department warned the actual route could be anywhere within 100 feet of the line drawn on the photographs—an allowance made for camera distortions.

As for the current survey on approval of the cooperation line change, Smith said the firm would readily agree to the revision. "It would only mean some of our property would be moved from the city into the county," he said, "and hence we'd pay lower taxes."

Appointments Generally OK'd

Ike's Newest Choices Studied By Leaders

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(P)—Generally favorable reaction from leaders of both major parties has greeted President-elect Eisenhower's three latest appointments to his high command.

Two of the three were for cabinet posts: Herbert Brownell Jr., New York lawyer and former aide to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, as attorney general, and George M. Humphrey, Cleveland industrialist, as secretary of the treasury.

Eisenhower also designated former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota as mutual security administrator. Of Humphrey's selection, Democratic Sen. Byrd of Virginia said: "He is a most outstanding and able businessman, and I predict for him a most successful administration."

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder telegraphed congratulations to Humphrey, offering his assistance in making a smooth transfer of authority. Snyder called Humphrey "an administrator of sound judgment and experience."

MUTUAL Security Administrator Averell Harriman made a similar offer in a telephone call to Stassen. Harriman's office said the two agreed to an early meeting.

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, who lost the GOP presidential nomination to Eisenhower, said of Humphrey he was "pleased that an Ohioan was selected." Taft had no immediate comment on the other appointments.

Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, who bolted the Republican party and now calls himself an independent, commented:

"The latest batch of Eisenhower appointments is but a continuation of placing reactionaries in complete control of his administration. Eisenhower apparently believes in placing big business in control of the government."

Former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau said he hopes the Eisenhower cabinet "doesn't go too much big business." Morgenthau, who served under the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, said he was "a little bit worried" about the possible makeup of the cabinet.

Cities Not Getting Tax Share, Claim

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22.—(P)—Ohio's cities aren't getting their share of sales tax revenues, the executive director of the Ohio Municipal League said Friday.

Allen E. Pritchard Jr. told legislative, finance and taxation, and streets and highways committees at a meeting here the league is disturbed by talk that the Legislature subsidizes cities and villages. Cities are entitled to one-third of sales tax revenues, he said, but added they don't get that much.

Top Secrets On U.S. Policy Given To Ike

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(P)—Another major move in changing the U. S. administration from Democrats to Republicans was noted here Friday night.

It was disclosed that the White House has given President-elect Dwight Eisenhower three volumes of top-secret information on major American policy.

The volumes were described as up-to-the-minute handbooks prepared for the President's use and revised as necessary. The transfer of this information, a White House spokesman said, was part of President Truman's plan to shift administrations smoothly.

The spokesman said one volume deals with problems relating to individual countries and geographical areas, along with policy currently in force there. Another was said to contain similar data about problems like export-import control, manpower and petroleum supplies. The third was described as dealing with high-level government organization and precautions against subversion.

Sabrejet Tops 700 Mph. Twice

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Nov. 22.—(P)—Air Force Capt. J. Slade Nash twice bettered 700 miles an hour in setting a new and as yet unofficial world speed record in an F8D Sabrejet plane.

This was disclosed by Charles S. Logsdon, timer for the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and the National Aeronautics Association. The speed trials were flown over Salton Sea Wednesday. He said Nash zoomed over a measured course four times in 698.44 mph, 698.08, 702.65 and 700.49.

Quake Hits Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—(P)—A 45-minute rolling earthquake collapsed a house in Oceano and rocked the California coastal mountains for 500 miles before and after Friday midnight. No deaths or injuries were reported.

IT'S A LIKE-FATHER-LIKE-SON situation as Count Folke, of Wisborg, Sweden, poses with his bride-to-be, Miss Kerstin Maria Glahn, a commoner. A generation ago the young man's father, Count Folke Bernadotte, created a stir by marrying an American girl, Estelle Manville. Miss Glahn is a confectioner's daughter.

Position Of Ohio's Farmers On Supports To Be Debated

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22.—(P)—The position of Ohio farmers on price supports shapes up as a major issue at the 34th annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, opening here Monday.

Two men who represent different schools of thought on the subject are on the program—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) and Rep. Harold D. Cooley, (D-NC).

Taft, an advocate of flexible farm price supports, outlines his views Monday night.

Cooley, outgoing chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, had a large part in writing the present support law and framing the farm plank of the Democratic platform which advocated a guaranteed 90 per cent of parity. He speaks Tuesday night.

The delegates are expected to adopt a resolution on farm price supports. A Farm Bureau poll of 7,109 Ohio farmers this month showed 41 per cent favor the present law, 38 per cent are against supports altogether, and 15 per cent favor flexible supports. The other 6 per cent favored other programs.

RESOLUTIONS are scheduled to be adopted Wednesday morning. The resolutions committee has discussed possible stands on: establishment of an emergency fund to fight outbreak of disease in livestock; amendment of the conservancy act to provide popular vote on creation of conservancy districts; strengthening state laws controlling strip mines; higher leg-

GOP Watching Vote Battle In Michigan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(P)—Senate Republicans, faced with a precarious margin in the new Congress, are keeping close watch on a post-election senatorial battle in Michigan.

Rep. Charles E. Potter, a Republican, ousted Democratic Sen. Blair Moody at Michigan's polls Nov. 4, according to an official canvass which had Potter ahead by 45,936 votes.

Friday, the Senate elections subcommittee, which had been asked to investigate what State Democratic Chairman Neil Staeble termed many irregularities in the count, requested that official notice of Potter's election be held up pending completion of a preliminary probe.

In Lansing, however, D. Hale Brake, acting chairman of the Senate Board of Canvass, turned down the committee request and said the board saw no reason to change its mind about certifying Potter.

Whether Potter is seated when the new Congress meets Jan. 3 could be vital in GOP plans to organize the Senate.

With Potter, the Republicans can count on at least 48 votes plus a vote by Vice President-elect Nixon in case of a tie. If Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, who now declares himself an independent, stays with his former Republican teammates in organizing the Senate, the Republicans would have 49 votes. Morse has not said with whom he will line up.

4 States Get 22 Inches Of White Blanket

Heaviest Fall Recorded Stalls Transportation And Communications

KNOXVILLE, Nov. 22.—(P)—A quirk of shifting air masses dumped up to 22 inches of snow Friday on mountain areas of four Southern states—Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia and Kentucky—paralyzing communications and transportation for many hours.

Despite rapid melting caused by relatively high ground temperatures, the unexpected storm left a large area of ill-prepared Dixie looking like a polar outpost. The snow blanket still measured 10 inches here early Saturday.

It was by far the heaviest fall ever recorded here and possibly the heaviest ever recorded this far south. But the resulting snarl in normal community living did not approach the intensity of the three-day ice storm which struck Tennessee and other Southern states early in 1951.

This city of 125,000 had a total fall estimated officially at 22 inches Friday. The precipitation in terms of water measured 2.32 inches.

THIS WAS the highest figure reported from the affected areas, but communications were still blacked out to many mountain areas to the east.

Briefly, here was the situation in other states:

Tennessee—Three to five inches of snow in the southeastern mountains. Harlan and Middleboro areas isolated.

Virginia—Four to 12 inches of snow in southwestern mountains. Telephone and telegraph lines down. Five to six hours delay on telephone calls and similar delays in train schedules. Primary highways clear. Few secondary roads blocked by high water, but no dangerous flood conditions.

North Carolina—Communications cleared, but patrolmen advise caution in western region where earlier rain is now freezing. Snow still falling in northwestern counties early Saturday.

Early reports included a few casualties. A young man and woman were killed at a railroad crossing in nearby Morristown. The accident happened at the height of the snowstorm, but officers were not sure it could be blamed on the storm.

Two women were injured, apparently not seriously, when a store marquee fell under the weight of snow as they were waiting for slow-moving city buses in downtown Knoxville.

BROKEN POWER lines brought severe discomfort to numerous families depending on electricity for heat as the temperature dropped to 25 degrees.

Railroad crews fought against heavy odds to push principal trains through the drifts hours behind schedule. Buses and automobiles were reported stalled along hundreds of miles of highways.

One train bringing the University of Kentucky football team here for a game with the University of Tennessee had to follow a walking signalman for the last 12 miles to the city.

The train halted at each signal block while the crewman walked ahead to the next to shift snow-clogged switches manually.

High Winds Whip County; Damage Light

Whistling winds bowling over Pickaway County at speeds estimated at more than 70 m.p.h. and carrying rain with them caused only minor damage Friday night.

Circleville was completely without automatic traffic control early Saturday due to a short in a power cable leading into the police station.

Linemen said the rain had caused the short. The traffic lights were back in use at about 9:15 a. m.

Other damage to lines in the county due to falling limbs was reported light, since most of the dead limbs were cleaned out earlier this year by storms.

One call was made late Friday in Orient, where a tree was on fire, apparently started by a falling power line.

Ohio Crusade For Freedom Being Set Up

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22.—(P)—Louis B. Seltzer, Cleveland Press editor, announced Saturday Gov. Frank J. Lausche has accepted honorary chairmanship of the Ohio Crusade for Freedom.

Seltzer, co-chairman of the state drive, also said R. Kenneth Kerr of Lancaster, has accepted the other co-chairmanship. New treasurer is Loring Gelbach of Cleveland. Kerr is publisher of the Lancaster Eagle-Gazette and president of the Ohio Newspaper Association. Gelbach is president of Cleveland's Central National Bank.

The Ohio organization will join with the national "crusade" in sending messages by balloon behind the Iron Curtain to nations controlled by Communists, and in raising $4 million to help operate six radio stations broadcasting messages from Europe to those behind the curtain.

Other appointments included: George V. Sheridan, Columbus, executive director of the Ohio State Council of Merchants, vice chairman for the central region.

William F. Maag Jr., Youngstown Vindicator publisher, north east regional vice chairman.

Bernice Pyke, Cleveland, chairman of federal employees in the state who are taking part.

British Financier Loses To Burglars

LONDON, Nov. 22.—(P)—British financier George Dawson, who made millions in postwar deals with surplus U. S. Army goods, was robbed here Friday night of an estimated $81,200 in jewels and furs.

Dawson was dining in his sumptuous London house when thieves broke in through an upper story bedroom. Undetected, they scooped up their loot. Dawson was named by a U. S. congressional investigating committee in March, 1950, as the leader of a group that made heavy profits in dealing with U. S. Army war surplus materials.

Bull Kills Man, 75

IRONTON, Nov. 22.—(P)—Owen F. Mayberry, 75, was killed Friday by a 1,000-pound bull which lunged at him on his Lawrence County farm and knocked him down a bank.

Taft Said Irked On Appointments

Ike Taps Dewey Aides For Top Posts; Ohioan's Role Studied

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — President-elect Eisenhower's choice of former aides of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for cabinet posts has prompted new speculation on the future role of Sen. Robert A. Taft.

With five prospective cabinet members named, Taft has yet to place a man from the list he reportedly submitted to Eisenhower at the latter's request.

On the other hand, two close associates of Dewey have been assigned key jobs—John Foster Dulles as secretary of state and Herbert Brownell Jr. as attorney general. A third who sided with Dewey and Eisenhower against Taft in the fight for the GOP presidential nomination earlier in the year, Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon, was named for secretary of the interior.

Although Taft is maintaining a "no comment" attitude publicly, friends said he was irked by the attention paid to Dewey, an intra-party political enemy who had a lot to do with the Ohio senator's defeat for the nomination.

FOR THAT reason, friends said Taft may seek the GOP floor leadership, where he would have a personal hand laid on legislation instead of exerting the remote, but powerful, control he has exercised in the role of chairman of the GOP Policy Committee.

As president, Eisenhower would have to deal directly with the Senate floor leader on legislation. If Taft wants that job, some Republicans say he can get it with little more than a token fight.

Taft was described by friends as in something of a "slow burn" about the cabinet appointments.

He now is awaiting action on the remaining four posts—secretaries of labor, commerce and agriculture and postmaster general—before he makes up his mind whether the agreement he had with Eisenhower last September in their Morningside Heights conference is being disregarded.

At that time, Taft issued a statement, in which Eisenhower concurred, saying there would be no discrimination against pre-convention Taft supporters in appointments in the new administration.

TAFT APPARENTLY missed on one recommendation when Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Virginia Democrat, said he didn't want to be secretary of the Treasury. Reportedly, Byrd had been Taft's choice for the job and was approached by Eisenhower's emissaries.

Instead, Eisenhower picked George E. Humphrey, Cleveland iron, steel and coal industrialist, for the job. While Humphrey described himself as a Taft supporter, there is plenty of evidence that Taft's men did not so regard him in this year's campaign despite his honorary chairmanship of a Taft committee in 1948.

The choice of Brownell, Dewey's campaign manager in the 1944 and 1948 presidential races, as attorney general was not expected to please Taft.

Nor was it expected that the Ohio senator would be enthusiastic about the selection of Harold E. Stassen to head the Mutual Security Agency—not a cabinet post but a key job all the same. Taft was irked that Stassen forced him into presidential primary contests where the former Minnesota governor was soundly beaten.

Still another Republican not in the Taft camp, Gov. Earl Warren of California, figured in the speculation about Eisenhower appointments.

EISENHOWER telephoned Warren Friday and while Warren declined to say what they discussed there was talk the governor may be in line for the first vacancy on the U. S. Supreme Court.

"California hasn't asked for anything" in the new administration, Warren told a news conference.

Of the four cabinet jobs yet to be filled, Taft's friends think one of their number probably will get only one, if that—secretary of commerce. There was no indication who was suggested by the Ohio senator for that job beyond Thomas E. Coleman of Wisconsin, his convention manager, who apparently turned it down.

Paul G. Toffman, former Marshall Plan administrator, and Walter Williams, Seattle businessman, were regarded as top prospects. Neither is friendly to Taft.

Reports persisted that Eisenhower still would like to name a Southerner to his cabinet. But few of them seemed in line to qualify for secretary of labor or for postmaster general, a post that GOP National Chairman Arthur Summerfield can have if he wants it.

The agriculture secretaryship was the object of much speculation, with John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, and John H. Davis, executive secretary of the National Council of Farm Co-operatives being pushed by farm organizations for the job.

Eisenhower also has talked of naming a woman to his cabinet. And, if precedent is followed, so far as callers at his New York headquarters are concerned, Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby of Houston, Tex., is in line for a top job.

Mrs. Hobby said only that she had invited the general to vacation in Texas.

LEONARD MOCERI, declared a suspect in four unsolved Southern California gangland slayings, is shown handcuffed after his arrest in Los Angeles. Police said he was also wanted in connection with two killings in Toledo and Detroit. Special telephone company agents, advised that Mocer had a penchant for putting slugs in pay phones, nabbed him after he called Las Vegas. (International)

Bishop Chides U.S. For Moral Laxity

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 22 — A Methodist bishop says this country must rise above what he called its lax morality in order to be an effective force for world peace.

"We must purge our national life," said Bishop Richard C. Raines of Indianapolis in a report to the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church. Citing gambling, drinking, divorce and civic corruption in the U. S., Bishop Raines said there was "no precedent in history for thinking such a nation can be used of God to bring peace and good will to earth."

Ton-Mile Tax Being Urged By Ohio Panel

Program Commission Notes Other Changes For State's Benefit

COLUMBUS, Nov. 22 — You can bet there'll be a lot of talk, pro and con, on the controversial ton-mile truck tax proposal in the next Legislature.

The Ohio Program Commission Friday formally recommended lawmakers pass the tax, figured on the weight of a truck and the distance it travels. Receipts would be used to build and maintain Ohio roads.

The proposal long has been backed by Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

The measure was killed by the last legislature.

The commission met here for two days, drawing up legislative recommendations. They included:

1—Creation of a committee of lawmakers to study the aid for the aged program.

2—Revolving of the state highway department to provide better administration of road projects.

3—Four-year terms for governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, and treasurer. The state auditor now serves four years.

4—FOUR-YEAR terms for state senators, who now serve two years. There was no recommendation regarding state representatives, who now serve two years.

5—A $25,000 a year salary for the governor, $15,000 salaries for elective state officials, and $12,000 salaries for department heads.

Next January the governor's salary jumps to $20,000 and elective state officials to $12,000.

6—Transferring from the state auditor to the state finance director accounting and current auditing, with the state finance department issuing warrants now issued by the auditor.

7—Creation of a two-party, three-member civil service commission to replace the two-member commission Ohio now has. The governor would appoint the commission.

8—Calling additional sessions of the General Assembly to consider a state budget, with the budget sessions coming between the regular sessions.

Ray Davis Reminds Republicans They Now Have Big Opportunity

Local Republicans have been reminded by their top spokesman that only long-range policies aimed to "win the full confidence of all sections of the public" can give the GOP "an established chance to show what it can do toward bettering things in the years ahead."

Ray Davis, chairman of Pickaway County Republican executive committee, underlined the necessity of strengthening the party by picking men and women who can do a job well instead of picking them on the basis of personal favor or political preference.

"Now that the election is over and there's no longer reason to doubt the sincerity of such an announcement," Davis said, "I hope all who shared in the overwhelming victory will look ahead to the GOP's big opportunity.

"I hope all of our party will keep in mind that our main goal is to win the full confidence of all sections of the public, so we can make the most of the opportunity now in our hands."

"FIRST POLICY in this direction, I believe, is to dedicate ourselves to the idea that men and women have to be appointed to various tasks on the basis of the ability they show. We must not waste the GOP's splendid opportunity through the years ahead by picking people for positions merely because they happen to be personal friends or because of political influence."

"At short range, many may argue it is the age-old way of American political organizations when they want to add power to their ranks—but this, as we all know, has been proven false by the American voters themselves."

"Only the long-range view is the one that can strengthen the party from the foundation up, and weld into its own policies the hopes of those who have picked the Republican party to lead the nation through the uncertain times already here."

"Under this long-range planning party gains may not be so evident over a period of time, but they will be far more solid—and consequently will in time firmly establish the Republican party for the full turn it deserves at the wheel."

"Best of all, it will also be the policy designed to serve the people with maximum efficiency through difficult days sure to come."

"In Pickaway County and everywhere else in the nation, the Republican party will begin next March to determine what sort of a party it is going to be many years hence."

More About Container Opposes Plan

Council, at last meeting, authorized Gerhardt to proceed with this phase of the bypass problem as the first step. Some councilmen privately indicated they hoped the corporation line phase would serve as a trial balloon on the basic idea of the bypass.

It was too early to judge the extent to which Container's outright opposition would affect the main proposal.

Container's opposition was foreshadowed at the last meeting of city council when Schroeder and Vernon Hawkes both indicated the plan faced the firm with baffling problems.

Hawkes at that time said the proposed route for the bypass would eliminate approximately half of the space now used in the firm's straw storage yard.

Ralph Cummins Takes Part In Operation Frosty

Winter weather added to the realism of "Exercise Frosty," a recent Army field maneuver in Austria which included Pvt. Ralph E. Cummins whose wife, Dixie Lee, lives in Duval.

Marked throughout by frequent rain, sleet and snow, the exercise gave Austrian-based American soldiers field training in the actual terrain they are guarding.

U. S. Army units took the roles of both aggressor and defending forces in the problem, which was conducted in the Salzkammergut mountains.

Observers at the operation included Fred Korth, assistant Secretary of the Army for manpower and reserve forces, and Lt. Gen. Charles L. Bolte, commanding general of the U. S. Seventh Army.

PRIVATE Cummins, a 57 millimeter rifleman in the 350th Infantry Regiment's Company F, has been in Austria since July.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Cummins of Ashville Route 2, Pvt. Cummins entered the Army in January of this year.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Communist Peiping radio claims the Manchurian rail center of Harbin, once a refuge for White Russians across the Soviet frontier, has been transformed into an industrial center in three years.

The Red broadcast said that before "liberation" by the Communists in 1948, Harbin had only one large factory, a railway workshop. Now, the Reds say, industrial output is five times above the 1949 level. Mentioned specifically were a modern flax mill, a machine tool plant, and a tractor parts plant.

Place Of Music In Religion To Be Sermon Topic

"Music in Christian Worship" is to be the theme of the sermon Sunday during services in the church of Christ, meeting at 159 East Main street. This will be an illustrated chart lesson showing the history of music in the worship of God's people throughout the ages.

The following outline of the lesson is given by Evangelist Charles Cochran:

"Music may be divided into two classes, vocal and instrumental. Vocal music has been used in every dispensation to sing praises to God and to magnify His holy name. It fulfilled a very important place in the life of the early Christians, being commanded as a part of their worship directed to God (Col. 3:16; Eph. 5:19).

"Instrumental music was first introduced into the worship by David under the law of Moses. During the New Testament period there is no record of its use whatsoever in the worship of the early church. It was not until about the year 670 AD that Pope Vitalian introduced the organ into the worship of the Catholic church. The Greek Catholic Church never generally accepted its use. It is used by most religious bodies today.

"Many may wonder why the churches of Christ today do not use instrumental music. The answer is, because a group of people claiming to 'speak where the Bible speaks and to remain silent where the Bible is silent' could not do so and be consistent. Furthermore, we are commanded to 'sing with the spirit and the understanding also' (1 Cor. 14:15), and our worship is to be 'in spirit and in truth' (John 4:23). Worship cannot be 'in truth' unless it is authorized by the truth, the word of God (John 17:17). When God commanded Noah to build an ark of gopher wood (Gen. 6) that was a specific command and eliminated all other kinds of wood. When God commands us to sing (Col. 3:16; Eph. 5:19) that makes it a specific command and would eliminate playing."

Bible Words To Live By

Isaiah 30:15—"In quietness and in confidence shall be thy strength."

In a day of strife and tumult, doubt and fear, we all need some sure source of strength for the duties of every day and confidence for the future. This I find in my favorite verse, though like most Christians, I have many other favorite verses and love the whole of God's Word.

Happy is the man whose trust is in the God and Father of us all, and who knows that through his faith in Christ as Saviour and Lord he has found the secret of joy and usefulness in life. Where else can we look for true and lasting peace of mind and heart and to whom else can we go for assurance for this life and the next.

Whatever the tumult without, the Christian can have peace and poise within. No matter what may be the test he has access to resources beyond himself that are unfailing and everlasting. Try this life of faith yourself and you, too, will find the promise is true, "In quietness and in confidence shall be thy strength."

Calvary Church To Hear Theme On Evangelism

"Evangelism" will be the theme of worship service Sunday in Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church.

This is an emphasis of the "Larger Evangelism Program" of the Evangelical United Brethren denomination, a part of which the church at present is engaged in under the "Strengthen The Sunday School Program." This program was begun last Friday evening and will continue through Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

In Sunday's service, the Rev. James Herbst will present the need for prayer for the church and the cause of Christ in this present day and will encourage the people through the entry into fellowship of prayer to support this program. Opportunity will be given to sign a prayer covenant card as a part of this great fellowship.

Bible reading book marks, giving the Bible passages from Thanksgiving till Christmas for universal Bible reading will also be passed out to the members of the congregation.

The pastor will be assisted in the service by Dale DeLong, Sunday school superintendent, and Miss Minnie Wilkerson, pianist.

At 7:30 p. m., officers and teachers of the Sunday school who are participating in the "Strengthen The Sunday School Program" will meet in the Sunday school annex for the second of a self-analysis services. The Rev. Howard Buckley, pastor of Ohio Avenue Evangelical United Brethren church of Columbus, will be present to continue in the direction of this program.

This program will continue through Monday and Tuesday nights, with the members of the entire congregation invited to be present for the final service at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Union Service Of Thanksgiving Due Wednesday

Sponsored by the Circleville Ministers Association, the service will welcome all members and friends of the churches of Circleville to "gather together."

The Rev. Donald Mitchell, host pastor and President of the Ministers Association, will preside over the service of Thanksgiving.

The Rev. James A. Herbst, pastor of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church, will preach the sermon on the subject: "For This I Am Thankful."

The Rev. Carl Wilson, pastor of First Evangelical United Brethren church and secretary of the Ministerium, will be in charge of the reading of Scripture and prayers. Under the direction of Mrs. Clark Will, the choir of the host church will sing a harvest anthem and will lead the congregation in the singing of hymns of Thanksgiving. At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L. Huston will play "Ode to Thanksgiving," "Pilgrim Song of Hope" and a fantasy on "Come Ye Thankful People."

All other local pastors plan to be in attendance and urge that a most cordial invitation be extended to all of Circleville citizenry to join together in this Union service to give thanks unto Almighty God for all the blessings which He has bestowed upon His people here and throughout the world.

'Thanks' Theme To Be Heard In Lutheran Service

The Rev. George Troutman will lead the members of Trinity Lutheran church Sunday in worship service.

His sermon theme will be, "One Out of Ten Giveth Thanks," based on the incident recorded in the gospel of Luke, the 17th chapter, verses eleven through nineteen. It tells how Christ healed the ten lepers who besought Him to heal them; and when they were healed only one of the ten returned to give thanks.

"We should be prompted to give thanks to God at this Thanksgiving Season as we ponder and review the past year of abundant blessings from on high," says the Rev. Mr. Troutman.

"It is our duty and responsibility to assemble ourselves together this Thanksgiving Eve and, as grateful Christians, give thanks to God the giver of every good and perfect gift."

"Any thoughtful individual will want to give thanks to God not only daily for His many blessings, but especially now at this Thanksgiving service."

At Sunday's worship and at the Wednesday Thanksgiving Eve service there will be a special ingathering of food and clothing for the needy. The food will be distributed by the Luther League on Thanksgiving morning to those needy families in the church and community.

Jesus' Thanksgiving -- and Ours

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Matthew 11.

By Alfred J. Buescher

When John the Baptist, confined in prison because he had criticized Herod's licentious way of living, heard about Jesus' works, he sent two men to ask Christ if He was indeed the Messiah.

Jesus answered the messengers: "Go and show John again those things which ye do see and hear—the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the deaf hear, the dead are raised up."

When the two men had left, Jesus said to the multitudes, "Verily I say unto you, among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist."

Jesus' Thanksgiving prayer began: "I thank Thee, O Father, because Thou hast hid these things from the wise and revealed them unto babes." MEMORY VERSE—Psalm 126:3.

VISITING THE COUNTIES

AN INDIANA MANUFACTURER, Fred Zeig, is the first man, so far as known, to have visited all of the 3,074 counties in the United States. He started traveling as a young man, in 1947 found he had been in more than 70 per cent of the nation's counties and decided, in the course of his business trips, to make it 100. His final county was one in New Mexico—Los Alamos.

It was a curious coincidence that just as Mr. Zeig visited his 3,074th county, the total number dropped to 3,073. That was because Armstrong County in South Dakota, which had fewer than 100 inhabitants, went out of existence. Adjoining Dewey County annexed it as the result of a vote in the November 4 election.

Most persons seldom stop to consider that the county is the largest division of local government in the United States, except in Louisiana, where the corresponding unit is the Parish. The word "county" originated centuries ago when a county signified the domain of a count.

Mr. Zeig's visitation of counties must be set down as one of the pleasantest of hobbies, which few would have the time, the means or the vocation to pursue on a national scale.

DOLLAR CONFIDENCE

IF THE EISENHOWER administration practices economy and manages the money soundly enough to stabilize the dollar, citizens of the United States will no longer be embarrassed by a monetary unit worth less than that of Canada, a nation with less than one-tenth the population of the U.S.

The Canadian dollar, worth $1.02 in terms of the depreciated U. S. dollar, has already weakened. It was worth more than $1.04 in mid-August. That was the climax of a period of 30 months during which United States capital was flowing into Canada to take advantage of the Canadian boom and of lower Canadian taxes.

Now, with the Canadian dollar weakening slightly, the capital movement has been reversed. The flow is back toward the United States. Investors believe the U. S. dollar will gain in value and soon wind up at the traditional value over the Canadian dollar.

The significance of this is not so much in the monetary relationship between the two countries as in the renewed confidence in the American dollar. If Washington can do what Ottawa has done — produce budget surpluses, reduce the national debt and lower taxes—confidence in the dollar will continue to grow.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER

Editor's Note: Every Saturday this veteran Washington correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' letters of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—"Why do not the House and Senate elect the chairmen of their committees," asks M. T. of Elizabeth, N. J., "instead of giving such important positions to them under the seniority system? Wouldn't that advance younger, more energetic men, and less hidebound members?"

Answer: This question was raised by the Democrats in the campaign as an argument against the election of Eisenhower. They maintained that, if the GOP controlled both houses of Congress, he would suffer from the fact that so many committee heads would be extreme conservatives or outright isolationists.

Despite its admitted faults, however, progress by seniority seems to be the only practical procedure. Otherwise, a President seeking tight control of the legislative branch could — and might — use his influence to place his own men in positions of power. That would upset the structure of a balanced government, with the legislators having a check on the executive agencies. The election of committee chairmen would be conducted with log-rolling by economic and regional groups, and there is too much of that on Capitol Hill now. Moreover, if the committee membership wishes, it can always override a chairman, for he has only one vote. Time and again, committees have reported out measures or authorized investigations in the face of opposition from the nominal boss.

TAFT'S POSITION — "Why does Senator Taft want to be the Republican leader of the Senate," asks G. F. of Sandusky, O., "as well as head of the Policy Committee? Is he simply grasping for personal power?"

Answer: The explanation for Senator Taft's leadership try is simple. The chairmanship of the GOP Policy Committee was a responsible job when a Fair-Deal President sat in the White House, for it enabled Taft to provide effective opposition and to give direction to his Party's course.

With Eisenhower in the White House, basic policy will be fixed there instead of on Capitol Hill, although Congress may modify or reject it. As Senate majority leader, the Ohioan would be both an adviser and pilot of White House legislation.

These Days

The world seems to have developed the habit of sustained prices at the cost of the American economy. The desire of most countries is that this rich market for raw materials should be bled white in the interest of what are called "under-developed" countries. It is another form of subsidy out of the earnings of the American people. An excellent example is the high price of coffee, which is so high only because our government has encouraged Brazil to enrich itself at the expense of the American people. The only effective way to restore a free market for such commodities, would be for the American people to reject the blackmail of "no subsidies—no friendship."

In the United Nations, this question comes up from time to time. Any drop in prices creates consternation among the under-developed raw materials producing countries. For instance, Fazal Elahi of Pakistan, recently made this point concerning such countries:

"They have apprehensions of further serious repercussions on their economies as well as on their development projects if there is even a mild recession in industrialized countries."

Naturally, countries that have accustomed themselves to inflationary prices, to subsidies, to Point Four give-away programs will resent any effort to return to a free market, in which the law of supply and demand is permitted by governments to operate. The give-away program is, in its economic effects, a dumping activity designed to place surplus goods in markets which cannot afford to buy them.

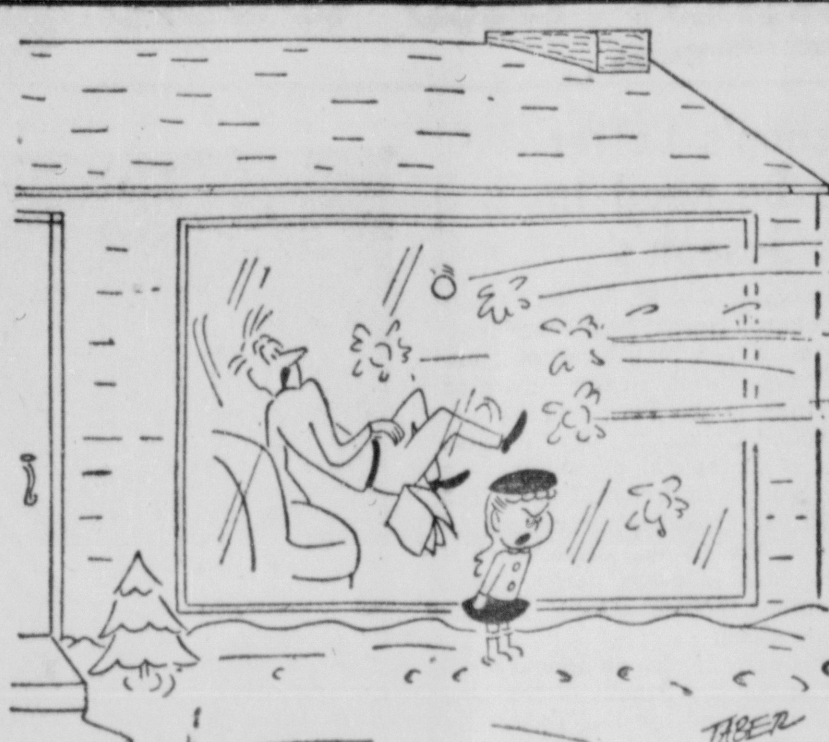

Whenever a country engages in such activities, it must anticipate that when it ceases to dump, when it stops giving away, it will pull the carpet from under the inflationary process and will produce not only an economic recession but political enmity. The politicians in those countries who built their strength on the sands of inflation find themselves in the quicksands of depression. This, in essence, is what happened in Europe under the Marshall Plan.

It is for this reason that Gonzalo J. Facio of Costa Rica advocated a price floor to protect the producers in the poorer countries. As such a universal, United Nations arranged price floor, let us say for coffee, could only mean a siphoning off of the wealth of the United States, the answer here can only be in sales resistance. In a word, if this country is to be forced to pay an "artificial" price for such a commodity as coffee, the American people can upset all calculations by rejecting coffee as a beverage. There is always danger that "artificial" prices kill the trade because the consumer is under no compulsion to buy a particular commodity. For thousands of years, most of the human race lived without coffee.

This happened with both silk and wool. Silk was affected not so much by the high price as by an anti-Japanese boycott and war. Silk substitutes, rayon, nylon, and even types of cotton cloth with fancy trade names, grew in popularity and usefulness. Pure silk products disappeared. This generation has little familiarity with the silk stocking which, to earlier generations, was the mark of gentility. Today, most women wear nylons which give them sweaty feet

Female Hormones Being Tested In Disease Causing Nosebleeds

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
NOSEBLEEDS are not usually dangerous, and generally stop by themselves if the blood clots properly. Other types of nosebleeds result from serious disorders of the blood or blood vessels, and present a different problem altogether.

A common cause of nosebleeds is an injury to the nose. Certain body conditions may, however, predispose a person to nosebleeds when an injury is not the immediate cause. These conditions include infections, clotting difficulties of the blood, and diseases such as rheumatic fever or leukemia.

Usually Hereditary
One of the most difficult types of nosebleeds to check, though not too common, comes from a condition known as telangiectasia. This disease is usually hereditary, but is not apt to show up before a child has reached his teens. It is most likely to occur during the 30's and 40's. It usually starts with a thinning of the walls of the blood vessels. This makes them rupture and bleed easily.

The inside of the nose in these people is a brilliant red. If the disease is also present in the skin, it is a red-violet shade. Usually this disease can occur in the skin or the intestine, but is also fairly common in the nose. Persons affected with it tell of spitting or vomiting blood, or passing blood in the urine or stool. Some may even have brain hemorrhage. Dilated blood vessels beneath the finger-nails usually give a clue that this condition may be causing the nosebleeds.

These nosebleeds are persistent. Many times pressure packs have to be kept in the nose many days, and even then they may not stop the bleeding.

X-rays, radium, and snake venom have been offered as measures to control this disease, but the results have been very slight.

Recently, it has been shown that nosebleeds from telangiectasia can be controlled with female hormones. In a small group of patients tested, hormone treatments reduced the number and severity of the nosebleeds. One patient has not had a nosebleed for the past year.

The way the hormones work is not known. However, further tests will be made, and if they are equally successful, those suffering from telangiectasia can look forward to relief.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
P. G.: My sister is suffering from lupus erythematosus. Can you tell me something about this disease?

Answer: Lupus erythematosus is a disorder which is characterized by the formation of pinkish- or reddish-colored patches of various sizes and shapes. When these patches heal, they leave thin, white scars. The eruption usually appears on the face, particularly on the cheeks and the bridge of the nose, and does not itch or cause any other symptoms.

The cause of lupus erythematosus is not definitely known. It usually occurs between the ages of 10 and 40, and is more common in women than in men. The disease is chronic and, in most instances, cannot be permanently cleared up, there being a marked tendency for the eruption to recur.

X-ray treatments seem to be the most satisfactory way to clear up the eruption temporarily. A lotion containing zinc sulphate, sulphur, and sulphurated potassium is helpful. Radium has also been used in treating the disorder. The new drugs, ACTH and cortisone, have been very helpful in treating this disease.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

IT WAS no surprise to Rawls to find, in the morning, that Jenkyn had made his escape. The cargo had been transferred, and now the Astrid prepared to pull out, leaving her sister ship behind. Rawls, as usual, was at the wheel.

"If you try any tricks," Whirter warned him grimly, "I'll shoot you. I would follow such a course with regret, mindful of the very real services you have rendered us. But I count the Cause bigger than you or myself or all of us put together. Make no mistake about that."

He meant it, as Rawls knew. But he'd made up his own mind as completely. This had gone far enough—the Astrid, the whole rash scheme. Mad as it had been, Whirter had gotten this far, and he might manage to win. Once embarked overland, his men would have no other choice than to back him to the limit, fighting like devils when called upon to do so. If the Indians were convinced that he was on their side, they might wipe out the gold camps, and go on from there to such an orgy of terror as Whirter had first conceived, while Whirter made a run back downriver with the loot that he hoped would revive the faltering Confederacy.

No one could deny that Whirter was giving all he had, risking his life at every turn, for something in which he believed. Now that Kathleen was fairly safe, Rawls knew that he could do no less. When Earnshaw became convinced that disaster had overtaken the Astrid, he would take the Varina back to the Missouri, if it were humanly possible to do so. Loaded now with the proper cargo for Fort Benton, Earnshaw would get it there if he could.

There was still one way to put a stop to Whirter's ambitious plan. If the Astrid was run hard aground, so solidly that it could not be gotten off, the Indians would think of the lot of guns and whiskey ready for the taking. And in their present mood, they'd take!

It had to be done today, before the meeting could be held and an alliance worked out with Whirter. Rawls had no illusions as to his own chance, once he wrecked the Astrid. Like the others, he would not be going back.

He'd try to find Kathleen for a last word, in the darkness before dawn, before transferring to the Astrid. In the confusion, he hadn't been able to locate her. There had not been much time. Perhaps it was as well, but it was hard to come to the end of a dream, to know that the awakening of cold reality had forever shattered it.

He could almost feel her beside him, as she had stood so many times, watching the river, the moving shores in ever-changing panorama. It seemed as if he could smell the perfume that he always associated with her, a subtle fragrance, bewitching as her quick smile.

This was no dream. He grew cold with realization, finding her beside him.

"You don't seem glad to see me, Denny," Kathleen murmured. "Am I as dreadful as the glimpse of a Sioux?"

Try, Stop Me

"Pop" Gabardine, coach of a midwestern football team, had seen his charges trampled eight Saturday afternoons in a row, the last time by a humiliating score of 55 to 0. When the squad regathered the following Monday, "Pop" said bitterly, "For the last game of the season, we might as well forget all the trick plays I tried to teach you dimwits. We're going back to fundamentals. Let's go! Lesson number one: this object I am holding is a football. Lesson number . . . At this point, Coach Gabardine was interrupted by a worried fullback in the front row, who pleaded, "Hey, Pop, not so fast!"

A fan asked French novelist Andre Maurois, "What is the best way to write?" Maurois answered, "From left to right." Another lady wanted to know if Monsieur Maurois believed in luck. "But certainly, madam," he replied. "How else could I explain the success of my competitors?"

variety is that it will be anything but mythical.

We already know who the quarterback of the new USA team will be. The voters took care of that on Nov. 4.

Sixty Scotch girl bagpipers have just paid us mere American males the finest of compliments. Booked to tour the U. S., they refused to sign a pledge not to get married while over here.

A member of the British parliament calls taking time out for tea a "crazy custom." Sounds like he's tired of public office.

A Nebraska family wants to give like a boxer puppy named Biff. We'd say that's the perfect mascot for an aggressive administration.

"How can I feel glad about you being here, thinking of the Sioux?" he asked. "On the Varina, you at least had a chance. That was the one thing that made this journey easier for me, the hope that you might come out all right."

"Meaning that you didn't expect to come back? Do you think it would seem right to me, in that case?" There was no coquetry here, but a realization of facts and a frank facing of them. "I like it better this way, Denny. I'd have come along, even if it hadn't been suggested that I should."

So Whirter had been responsible. She saw the trouble in his face, and her own voice was steady.

"You spoke as though we were getting toward the end of something—to the river's end, perhaps. I'm not asking what you meant. But whatever you were going to do, you must go ahead, just the same. Nothing can be allowed to make any difference. What must be done is bigger than we are, Denny."

He was silent, staring ahead, unmindful of the sharp upthrust of boulders from the river bottom, of the torn froth of the current, so like his own mind. She had made a declaration of more than faith, and her willingness to be with him in such a situation was both uplifting and depressing. His gaze at Whirter threatened to turn from chill to explosive flame. Urging Kathleen to this journey was proof that the man had cast aside all qualms, that he now would stop at nothing to get his way.

Rawls had planned to run the Astrid hard aground and be done without delay. Now his hands on the wheel were clammy with sweat, and they continued to creep upriver, the hours wearing by, his mind a torment. He noted landmarks mechanically, out of long habit. It would be better to wait until night was close at hand, now that Kathleen was along. That would increase the distance back to the Varina, and lengthen the hazards of reaching it, but any escape from a stranded boat would be impossible by daylight.

Clouds came with the afternoon, piling dark against the horizon, torn by lightning. For some miles the river had been deep and sluggish, but now it hurried as if impatient to reach some secret rendezvous. The engines made a frenzied labor, driving against the sharpness of the current.

A couple of hundred feet upstream, Rawls saw what he had been waiting for, half hoping not to find. The outlines were sharply etched; the fluted water turning to an angry boil as it slid past told his experienced eyes the exact quality of the obstruction. This was a knife-like rock, and once on that, there would be no getting the Astrid off again. Even if grasshoppering was possible, the bottom would be sliced out.

Kathleen had returned to the pilothouse. Rawls looked at her, marveling at the serenity of her face as she gave him a quick smile, feeling his own torn and twisted, but knowing that the moment could not be compromised. His eyes ranged the shores, where once more the cottonwoods came close to the banks, shivering to the surge of the wind. The engines, driving at full speed, seemed almost to scream—

For an instant he didn't know what had happened. It was too big, too fraught with confusion, a wild wrenching and twisting as though the boat had been caught in giant hands that were tearing agony, an exhilarating sound.

The razor edge of the rock was still ahead, and then, as he was flung violently backward and the hiss of escaping steam rose like the shriek of devils, Rawls understood. The long-overstressed boilers had burst.

He found himself in the water, surrounded by parts of the disintegrating packet. The explosion had torn it apart, smashing with relentless power, and already she was racing to take over what the spite of the steam had left.

This was not at all as Rawls had pictured such an event in his mind. It had happened with such speed that the pilothouse had been torn loose and flung aside, along with whatever happened to be on it. Most of the Astrid had not fared so well, nor had the others aboard her. But he thought still was for Kathleen. She had been beside him—

Debris was everywhere, coating the river in a tangled jumble, making it hard to pick out individual objects. Something stirred in the water, and he swam that way, grabbed at a thrashing arm, white-lipped, upflung. Kathleen's head came out of the water, hair streaming, her eyes wide and dazed. Her fingers found his own wrist and tightened convulsively, but it was a possessive clutch, free of panic.

Only now was the full effect of the disaster beginning to appear. There was a curious lack of screams and cries, testifying to the swift destructiveness of the first blast. The tormented noise of wood and metal shrieked in final disintegration, the crackle of flames rising as the other subsided. From the shores the silence remained unbroken, but several figures came into view, like phantom spirits conjured out of hell; men who moved soundlessly and watched half in bewilderment, half in avid expectancy. The startling end of the Astrid had taken the Indians as much by surprise as anyone, and they had not yet adjusted themselves to the full meaning of the disaster, to the fact that the whiskey and the guns were gone.

Some of that daze gripped Rawls, as though this was a dream from which he must presently awaken. He saw a warrior wade out from shore, slipping once and almost falling, but going with methodical purpose. About him in this moment was none of the theatrical pomp of blaring attack, yet he was doubly sinister as he caught something that floated and started dragging a dead man to shore for the dreadful business of securing a trophy.

Most of the crew must have perished in the explosion. For the others there would be no mercy if they reached the bank, and the thought dispelled the fog in Rawls' mind, jerked him back to reality. He must reach shore with Kathleen—

Pro Football League Faces Possible Tieup

Biggest Game Sunday To See Rams Joust With Mighty 49ers

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 — The National Football League could well be all tied up in knots after Sunday's games with four teams deadlocked for first place in the National Conference and three in the American division.

You probably could name your own odds but this would be the situation if New York, Philadelphia, Chicago Bears, Green Bay and Los Angeles win:

San Francisco, Detroit, Green Bay and Los Angeles would be tied for the National conference lead, each with six victories and three defeats. The American conference would have Cleveland, New York and Philadelphia all-square, also each with a 6-3 record.

Going into Sunday's games, San Francisco and Detroit are tied for first place in the National Division. The 49ers meet the surging champion Los Angeles Rams, on the comeback trail after dropping three of their first four games. The Detroit Lions journey to Chicago where the Bears have lost three of four home games.

In the American conference, the pace-setting Cleveland Browns will attempt to protect their slim lead against Philadelphia, tied for second with the New York Giants. The Giants invade Washington. Green Bay's Packers figure to stay in the title picture by beating the winless Dallas Texans.

Only the Chicago Cardinals at Pittsburgh game doesn't figure in the championship race.

Picking the top game from this schedule-maker's dream depends on what team you are rooting for, but from a spectator standpoint the No. 1 contest is likely to be in Los Angeles.

A crowd of 60,000 is expected to see the Rams challenge the 49ers for the lead.

The game figures to be a battle between the Rams' Norm Van Brocklin, the passing wizard, and the legs of Rookie Hugh McElhenny and Joe Perry of the 49ers. Van Brocklin is the league's no. 1 passer with 49 completions in 115 attempts for an average gain of 8.27 yards. Against the Bears last week he tossed touchdown aerials of 84, 61, 56 and 20 yards.

The 49ers have picked up 1,500 yards this season with 589 credited to McElhenny and 487 to Perry. That puts them third and fourth, respectively, behind Eddie Price of the New York Giants and the Rams' Dan Towler.

THE LIONS, sporting five straight wins, and with All-American Leon Hart back in shape, figure to turn down the Bears before some 40,000 fans.

The Browns rule a 13½-point choice over the Eagles. The Giants who have played their best ball on the road, are an 11-point pick over Washington. Green Bay is selected to beat the Texans by 21 and Pittsburgh is a five-point choice over the Cards.

Three of the games, handled regionally, will be available on two television networks as follows:

New York Giants at Washington Redskins—No Ohio stations.

Philadelphia Eagles at Cleveland Browns—Dumont, 2 p. m., to Cincinnati and Dayton.

Detroit Lions at Chicago Bears—ABC-TV 2:30, to Dayton, Cincinnati and Columbus.

Sokolsky's These Days

but improve the appearance of the leg, I am told. It is doubtful whether the new economy of Japan will succeed in re-establishing silk production on a pre-war basis.

As for wool, at the end of World War II, the British and Australians held up the price of wool beyond good business sense. I recall Bernard Baruch warning against this fallacy and recommending the sale of their stores of wool instead of borrowing money and begging for a handout.

Wool substitutes immediately appeared and some of them pleased the market so that they have found a permanent place.

Dr. Cesar A. Bunge of the Argentine, speaking at the United Nations, said with regard to this wool situation that he did not want to stand in the way of technological improvement but that the United States ought to take into account the interests of less developed countries. These less developed countries should have thought of this when they tried to hold us up by hoarding their wool until the price was so high that our people began to resist it.

After all, neither the Government of the United States nor the United Nations can force an American woman to wear anything she feels is out-priced for political or any other reasons.

Bulldogs Top Indians With 65-53 Count

New Holland Bulldogs cagers, bumped from the undefeated ranks last week by Walnut, rebounded Friday night to post a 65-53 win over Monroe Indians on the Monroe court.

The Bulldogs led throughout the encounter, posting period-end leads of 18-12, 35-23 and 45-37 before clinching the victory with the 65-53 final count.

Ted Vincent was leading scorer for the invading Bulldogs with 23 points, tied for game honors by Rolie Carpenter, who hit 23 for the Indians.

New Holland reservists made the evening complete for the fans who made the trip, scoring a comfortable 36-29 win over the Indian juniors.

Next game for the Bulldogs will be a big one, an invasion of Class "A" Washington, C. H. next Tuesday night. Monroe has no game carded for next week.

Box score of Friday's varsity encounter follows:

Sugar Bowl Game Is All Sold Out

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 22 — The Sugar Bowl football game is a sell out, the sponsoring New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association announced Saturday.

Association President Irwin Poche said the last available tickets had been disposed of with the shipment of team ticket allotments to Georgia Tech and Mississippi, opponents for the Jan. 1 game in the 80,000-plus capacity stadium.

106-30 Score Gives Win To Buffalo Quint

Scioto Buffalo cagers have been a long time breaking from their lethargy, but when they do it they do it right.

The Scioto team Friday night posted a victory of 106 to 30 over visiting Canaan cagers from Madison County.

Whipping into the scoring business with a will, Buffalo courtmen posted a 22-5 lead in the first stanza, held a 56-16 advantage at the half-way mark and entered the third period with an 85-21 margin.

Leading scorer for the Buffalos and setting the top mark for scorers to date in the county was John Stewart, who netted 39 for the evening. Teammate Bill Martin collected 25 and Pete Martin earned 18.

SCIOTO's reserves made the evening a satisfying one for the Scioto crowd, posting a safe 47-28 victory over the Canaan reservists.

Scioto does not have a game scheduled for next week. Box score of the high-scoring, lopsided varsity game follows:

Net Farm Income For 1953 Expected 5 Percent Lower

Labor Costs, Fertilizer To Increase

Farmers Advised To Begin Now In Getting Supplies

Farmers' net income for 1953 probably will average five percent less than in 1952.

Pointing out that this is the prospect for all U.S. farmers, Mervin G. Smith of Ohio State University added that Ohio farmers' net income may drop even more than five percent.

Ohio farmers market a smaller proportion of products from crops that have been increasing in the dollar volume sold.

While costs of farm operation are edging up even now, the value of farm marketings will remain about the same. In 1953, farmers probably will sell more commodities at slightly lower prices than this year.

ACTUAL buying power in the United States next year may be down six or seven percent from 1952 buying power for each farm person. That would be a 20 percent drop from the peak of farm buying power in 1947.

Purchasing power of non-farm people will be about eight percent more next year than it was in 1947.

At the same time, farm labor and fertilizer lead the list of items that probably will increase farming costs in 1953.

Economists expect farm labor to be three to five percent higher next year than during 1952.

Fertilizer prices probably will edge up two to four percent. Labor costs in 1952 increased seven percent over the previous year, while fertilizer prices averaged three percent higher in 1952 than in 1951.

Farmers are advised to arrange early for next year's fertilizers. They will want to use more next year to increase production.

Supplies of nitrogen will be about 11 percent larger in 1953. There will be about 11 percent more phosphate and 17 percent more potash.

Feed prices next year probably will go up. Timothy, brome grass and alfalfa seed probably will be higher. Alfalfa, ladino clover and seed for winter cover crops will be lower in price in 1953.

Pesticides, building materials and interest rates in 1953 probably will stay near 1952 levels. Farm land values also are expected to remain near present levels.

Local Sailor Commended For Work In Korea

Leonard E. Coffland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Coffland of 225 Logan street, has received a commendation for his work while stationed in a hospital at Inchon, Korea, near the front lines.

Coffland, serving with the Navy as a hospital mate, received the commendation from his commanding officer for "intelligence and leadership in the execution of your duties which greatly aided the rapid recovery of the patients on orthopedic service."

The commendation, made part of Coffland's service record, covered a period from July 13 to October 13. During the month of September alone he gave 1,100 treatments for wounded patients sent back from the front lines.

Coffland also holds the South Korean Presidential Citation.

ROBERT MITCHUM as a retired rodeo rider injured in a come-back attempt, is attended by Susan Hayward, Arthur Hunnicutt, young Carol Nugent and Sam Flint. Dynamic action feature "The Lusty Men," starting Sunday in Grand theatre.

DEAN MARTIN and Jerry Lewis team up for the laugh hit "Sailor Beware," playing Saturday and Sunday in Cliftona theatre. Other feature on the double bill is "Gold Fever," starring John Calvert and Ralph Morgan.

Hot Weather Cause Of Poor Corn Pollination

Pickaway County farmers who harvested somewhat less than a bumper crop of corn this year can lay the blame wholly upon the weather.

Hot, dry weather produced stalks without ears and cobs without corn in many Ohio corn fields this fall.

However, poor pollination was more to blame for earless stalks and cornless cobs than poor growing. Corn fields were hot and dry when tassels were coming out and when pollen was moving to silks.

In some cases, pollen died shortly after tassels emerged. In other cases, silks dried up and pollen could not cling to them. Tassels came out in some fields sooner than silks. When the silks emerged, most of the pollen was gone.

MULTIPLE ears, reported by many farmers, developed when the main ear was not adequately pollinated. The ear shoots always are there on some hybrid corn. Farmers usually do not notice them.

Shoots developed this year and produced a number of cobs on one shank when the main ear failed to develop.

Farmers who find corn on butt-ends of ears but not at the tips have found cases of incomplete pollination. Silks at the tips of ears come out last and are pollinated last.

Although faulty pollination produced most of the damage this year, there were some cases where pollination was complete, but kernels were not developed at ear tips. Under poor growing conditions, some hybrids supply nutrition only to the butt-ends of ears. Ear tips are permitted to starve so at least some kernels can develop completely.

Cases of multiple ears and undeveloped grains at ear tips were evidence of the plants' attempts to make up for difficult conditions.

In ancient Europe, black cats were believed to embody evil witches and even in the Middle Ages they often were burned alive on Halloween.

Average American Now Taking 7th Inning Stretch From Fear

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—The explosion of an H-bomb weapon in the Pacific may have startled the diplomatic world. The average American, however, took little more note of it than if, on a summer night, he had glanced up and seen a star fall.

Previous tidings of other new and marvelous ways in which the human race could destroy itself have exhausted his capacity for terror and dismay.

The ordinary mortal today is tired of being frightened by graphic previews of what may befall him. He has eaten the bread of crisis so long it has come to have a stale taste.

People were so upset over the atom bomb that the wider threat of the H-bomb can hardly appeal them. You have to rest from fear sometime, and the average man feels like taking a seventh-inning stretch right now.

"So maybe I'll get conked sometime by an H-bomb instead of an atom bomb," he thinks. "What difference does it make to a fly whether it is swatted with a rolled up newspaper or a baseball bat?"

He is also losing his ability to marvel at the fresh marvels of science, because so many of its wonders turn out to be blunders.

This has been a fearful and tremendous century of strident and continuous change, multiple death and vast growth. It is perhaps the most adventurous and exploratory century in history, one that has thrown a small candle of light into the darkness of strange new worlds which seem to many more terrifying than inviting.

A man who is only as old as this century—just 52 years—has endured a lot. He has weathered at least three depressions and two and a half world wars. When he pauses to catch his breath and look back, it seems to him that nothing has remained unchanged with the possible exception of mother love.

The safe-seeming world he was born into has vanished long ago. He has seen the horse and buggy replaced by the jet plane, the stereoscope slide give way to the television image, chewing tobacco succeeded by bubble gum.

The key phrase of that sturdy, distant time was "All I want is a fair chance, an opportunity to show what I can do." Badgered and bedeviled by these years of ceaseless change, a 52-year-old man today worked fewer hours than his father did. But his leisure also is now tormented by fears of new dooms his grandfather never dreamed of even in his nightmares.

It is no wonder that this middle-aged man in a middle-aged century now often yearns, most of all, for some form of security, a sanctuary from the threat of immense danger that has palled his times almost as long as he can remember. Even the young, ordinarily venturesome, are infected today by the craving for a kind of security no generation ever really has had in the long hard lot of mankind on this earth.

The ordinary mortal would like science to quit dealing up fresh mass-death instruments and build him instead an escape hatch from the perils of the twentieth century.

Ashville Supporting Anti-Rat Campaign

Ashville officials are urging county-wide support for a drive against rats, scheduled to reach its climax Dec. 15—the date set for the placing of poison bait throughout the county.

Pickaway County agricultural extension office is conducting the campaign in cooperation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Don Herr, associate county agent, is directing the drive for the extension organization.

Herr has asked both rural and city residents to buy bait at designated stores and to hold it ready for placing on the announced "B-Day" next month.

Ashville's action was the first official move made by any of the local communities in support of the campaign.
